Counties of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry.

INTRODUCTION

INTRODUCTION.

In compiling the following brief sketch of the only group of three united counties in the Province of Ontario, it is our desire to preserve for its people a lasting record of its early history, now existing only in the memories of the very few original settlers who have been spared to see the present day, to most of whom even the history of the first encounter with the forest of these counties is a revelation; they having been but the children of the pioneers, and too young at that early period to admit of the retention in their minds of incidents which we coursed under their observation. In fact, the greater part of the information concerning the early settlement of the counties which we would here endeavour to impart is of a traditional character, having been handed down from sire to son through two and three generations; but apart from such sources, we would acknowledge our indebtoclases to several works of a historical and statistical nature, among them the volume published some years since by Mr. James Croil, under the title of "Dundas, or a Sketch of Canadian History," which contains many items of interest bearing upon the history of the county named.

Works of local history possess a charm which is heightened rather than diminished by the lapse of years, as in scanning their pages the pioneers recall the recollection of the trials and hardships of the long ago, when "bowed the woods before their hardy stroke," and the fertile soil yielded up its increase as a reward for their diligent labour; and in such works the young find a worthy example of self-reliant industry and untiring persevernece, which, handed down in historical detail, acts as an incentive to emulation.

The death of all the pioneers of some of the localities, and even townships, has rendered the task of collecting accurate and elaborate information respecting the incidents attending the early settlement of such localities extremely difficult, and in some cases impossible; therefore the indulgence of the reader is solicited for what may appear, in occasional instances, to be a meagreness of detail, in consideration of the fact that apparently the only private memoranda existing on this subject are written in invisible characters in the memories of the people by the finger of tradition

Having thus prefaced our sketch of the history of the counties, we will proceed with a description of their

GEOGRAPHICAL POSITION AND EXTENT.

The Counties of Glengarry, Stormont, and Dundas are three of the forty-two counties which, with the Districts of Muskoka, Nipissing, and Algoma, and several "Provisional" counties, constitute the Province of Ontario. They lie north of and fronting upon the River St. Lawrence, extending from the eastern limit of the Province westerly until the eastern boundary of the County of Grenville is reached.

Their extreme east and west points lie between the meridian of 74' 20' and 75' 29' west longitude, and its northernnost and southernnost extremes between the parallels of 44' 37' and 45' 25' 8' respectively of north lating north latitude.

The integral parts of the union consist, in addition to the counties named, of the following subordinate and independent municipalities, viz.:—One town, Cornwall, in the County of Stormont; two incorporated villages, Morrisburg and Iroquois, in the County of Dundas; and twelve townships, four in each county, distributed thus: Cornwall, Conabruck, Finch, and Roxborugh, in Stormont County; Williamsburg, Matilda, Mountain, and Winchester, in Dundas County; and the remaining four, Lancaster, Charlottenburg, Lochiel, and Kenyon, in Glengarry County.

The territary of present included within the composition of the Town.

Gleugarry County.

The territory at present included within the corporation of the Town of Cornwall originally belonged to Cornwall Township, while that lying within the corporate limits of Morrisburg and Iroquois was taken from the Township of Williamsburg and Matilda respectively. Each of the municipalities thus incorporated still retains its connection with the counties for municipal purposes. The metes and bounds of this group of counties may be set forth as follows:—Their eastern, or rather north-eastern, limit is formed by the County of Soulanges, and a portion of the County of Vandrouli, in the Province of Quebec; on the north the Counties of Prescott, Russell, and a part of the County of Greleton fill a similar position; the County of Grenville borders it on the west; while the River St. Lawrence (which here runs in an almost north-easterly direction) forms its front or southern boundary.

of Graville Scriers it on the west; while the River St. Lawrence (which here runs in an almost north-easterly direction) forms its front or southern boundary.

In regard to territorial extent, these counties embrace within their limits an area slightly in excess of 1,292 square miles, or 827,058 acres, divided as follows:—Stormont County, 861,760 acres; of which, as per last official census, the Town of Cornwall contained 922; Township of Cornwall, 64,073; Osnabruck, 89,569; Finch, 55,000; and Royborough, 71,660. Dundas County, 269,404 acres; of which Morrisburg embraces 1,540; Iroquois, 1,200; Matida, 63,240; Williamaburg, 61,260; Mountain, 58,752; and Winchester a like number of 38,752. Glengarry County, 293,894 acres; of which Charlottenburg contains 84,250; Lancaster, 98,340; Lochiel, 72,876; and Kenyon, 80,428. According to the same authority, the population of these counties in 1871 aggregated 53,188 souls, of whom 20,524 belonged to Glengarry; 18,887 to Stormont; and the balance of 18,777 to Dundas.

Though neither of these three counties contains a population approaching in numbers that of some of the counties farther west, yet they are all thickly and in some townships densely settled, and their inhabitants will probably outnumber those of any other counties of like territorial extent in the Province.

EARLY SETTLEMENT.

By this term we of course refer to the first permanent settlement by race who now possess the soil. Centuries prior to the location of the Anglo-Saxon in this territory, by this term we of course refer to the first permanent settlement by the race who now possess the soil.

Centuries prior to the location of the Anglo-Saxon in this territory, it was inhabited by those brave but uncivilized and warlike aborigines whose origin is a mystery to scientists, and whose occupation of these forests continued up to the advent of the white pioneer.

According to the best information obtainable, the various tribes inhabiting what are now the Province of Ontario and the northern portion of Quebee were of a common ancestry with those residing to the south of the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario, yet for years previous to the south of the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario, yet for years previous to the siesovery of Canada there had existed a bitter foud between the two factions, which led to frequent and bloody forays of the one against the other. On the arrival at the site of Quebee of that illustrious discoverer Samuel De Champlain (whose name is perpetuated in the beautiful lake of the same appellation in north-eastera New York), he was induced to ally himself and his followers with the northern tribes, whom the French called the froquois to Troquoises) du Nord, and their southern enemies the froquois du Sud.

It was probably in the prosecution of these wars that the first white men, in the persons of the French allies of the Froquois du Nord, ever troot the soil of the counties of which we write, at a period of 10 years or more prior to the settlement of the ancestors of the present occupants. During the interval between these two events, however, others of far greater general importance than either had taken place in the New World. The French had obtained a firm hold upon the territory which now constitutes the most joundous portion of our fair Dominion, but this grasp was ultimately relinquished; and the close of the Revolutionary War, not long after, found England with a vastly diminished territory in America, and a great number of loyal colonists on her hands, whom she was in honour bound to that many of the most flourishing settlements of Upper Canada were thus formed along the southern frontier of the Province, from Cornwall to Amherstburg, and it was in this manner that two of the counties of which we write, viz., Stormont and Dundas, were originally settled; Glengarry having been colonized by Highland Scotch Catholics, of whom were and which we write, VL., Stormont and Dindas, were originally settled; diengarry having been colonized by Highland Scotch Catholies, of whom more anon.

The pioneers of the two counties first named came chiefly from the Valley of the Mohawk, in New York State, whither many of them had migrated from Germany before the outburst of the Revolution. The greater number of the men had served the Crown under Sir John Johnston, who commanded what was known as the "Royal New York Regiment," and when the proclamation of peace in 1783 deprived them of their occupation as soldiers, and their homes as the enemies of the then established Government, there was no course open to them but to accept the offer of the British Government—for which they had so bravely fought and so uncomplainingly suffered—and hew out homes for themselves in the trackless wides of Canada, where, though far removed from the luxuries and even comforts of life such as had graced their Mohawk Valley homes, they could still be under the protecting folds of the Union Jack, and continue to serve the British sovereign in the more peaceful but no less honourable capacity of industrious and honest citizens. Viewed through the light of the century which has now almost passed away since these events transpired, it may appear to many as truly astonishing that these people should voluntarily forfeit their estates, positions in society, the friendships of their patriot on many as truly astonishing that these people should voluntarily forfeit their estates, positions in society, the friendships of their patriot relatives and almost everything clse that men usually holt near and dear; but by such parties it should be remembered that the United Empire Loyalists (as the adherents of the Crown were called) were better versed in loyalty than in policy, and that they were much more conscientious than practical to the Cromotism of the power of the Revolutionary War Sir John Johnston's regiment, about 800 storeng, was stationed at Isle aux Noix, a fortified post at the northern whom more anon.

The pioneers of the two counties first named came chiefly from the acres fronting on the river, and two hundred acres at a point within the county in which he located, remote from the stream. There were other equally liberal conditions, by which the children of Loyalists who had borne arms were amply provided for. Thus the entire river front in the Townships of Cornwall, Osnabruck, Williamsburg, and Matilda was settled upon simultaneously by a class of people who brought to bear upon their lives in the Canadian forest that high degree of persevering industry by which they had been characterized in their New York homes, which ultimately resulted in the subjection of the "Genius of the Wilderness," and literally made the desert to blossom as the rose.

The County of Glengarry, as before intimated, was colonized by Highland South of the Roman Catholic faith, the pioneer party of whom came from Inverness and the neighbouring shires in 1786, settling in their western forest homes in the summer of the same year. Of these the greater number settled in Lancaster and Charlottenburg; but members of this party occupied without intermission the lots along the Riviere aux flasisms up to a point about two miles west of St. Andrew's (which hamlet was founded and named by these same people), in Cornwall Township.

The knowledge of the birthplace of these pioneers will have conveyed the idea that they were inexperienced in the art required to subdue the forest and make it yield the means of subsistence to the settler who boldly undertook its conquest; but if not known before, the fact of this inexperience soon became apparent when their settlements were compared with those of their Loyalist fellow-citizens further west. In 1788 a second contingent of Highlanders were settled in Glengarry; and this race and their descendants have ever formed a medium between the two extremes of religious faith and language existing on either side of them; for while their faith was identical with that of the French settlers whose territory joined theirs on the east, yet they spoke the same language as the Protestants who had located to the west of them; same language as the Processants who and coacact to the west of them; and by this happy distribution of the races and creeds by Government was secured profound and lasting harmony between them all, whereas the meeting of the two extremes would undoubtedly have been productive of feuds as bitter as the respective faiths of the contending races was sincere.

From the dates mentioned onward, this portion of the Province received additions to its population, both by immigration and natural increase, but no concerted influx of strangers took place thereafter; and as this properly brings us to the end of the period which may be properly classified as belonging to the time of the early settlement of the counties as a united whole, we will leave our remarks upon the progress and development of this territory to the several sketches of the individual municipalities of which the three counties are composed.

POLITICAL HISTORY.

POLITICAL HISTORY.

There is probably no territory of equal extent in the Province which has produced a greater number of able and eminent politicians, or around which more interesting political memories cluster, than the Counties of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry. From this field the first Parliament of Upper Canada selected its Speaker, in 1792; here that political monster popularly known as the "Family Compact" is alleged to have been born; from the constituencies embraced within these counties the said "Compact" gathered a good share of its support; this district contributed at least five Speakers to the list subsequent to the one above mentioned; here was the birthplace and home of that great Casition leader, the late Honourable John Sandfield Macdonald; of his brother, the present Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario; of one Chief Justice (McLean); of numerous Judges, as well as many others of acknowledged political ability and legislative talent.

It may not be out of place here to devote a paragraph by way of explanation of the various terms by which the different civil and political divisions of this territory are and have been known from tinae to time since the establishment of British Government in Canada. From the time of the passage of the "Quebec & Cat" by the Imperial Parliament in 17-4, and up to the year 17-88, Canada, Upper and Lower, which then consisted of but one province, was divided into two districts. These were judicial divisions, there being at that time no political divisions, as the governing power was, by the provisions of that Act, vested in the Governor and Executive Council nominally, though really it resided in the Governor himself, for the members of the said Council (to the number of from seventeen to twenty-three) were appointed by the Governor. The Upper or Western District of the two thus formed was called by the name of Laucaster, and was nearly identical with what subsequently became Upper Canada, and is now Ontario.

By proclamation of Lord Dorchester, dated 24th July, 1788,

Ontario

Description of Lord Dorchester, dated 24th July, 1788, the District of Lancaster was divided into the four Districts of Lancaster was divided into the four Districts of Lancaster was the from the eastern limits of the late District of Lancaster westerly to a "line intersecting the mouth of the River Gananoque, now called the "Thames, above the rifts of the St. Lawrence, and extending northerly and southerly to the limits of our said Province." Within this direct, of course, the present counties of which we write were included.

By proclamation of Lieutenant-Governor Simcoe in 1792, the Province was divided into nineteen counties (Stormont, Dandas, and Glengarry being among them) for representative purposes, and here we notice the first application of the name "county" in the territorial divisions of the Province. As distinguished from the district divisions, whereas the other was political or parliamentary-representative division, whereas the other was judicial, each district being the territory wherein and over which the jurisdiction of the Court established within its limits and over which the jurisdiction of the Court established within its limits extended. These distinctions continued for many years, and the various changes which were from time to time made in the districts were entirely independent of the county divisions, except in rare cases where geographical peculiarities intervened to make both divisions identical, as in the case of Prince Edward.

Although the original county divisions were representative divisions, yet they did not in all cases comprise the identical territory entitled to be represented, for whereas the number of counties formed was nine-teen, the number of representatives provided for was but sixteen. The principle of representation by population was admitted as nearly as an approximate estimate could form the ground of the division, some counties sending two representatives, some one, and in some cases a number being grouped together to elect a single representative to the first Parliament of Canada.

Enclosed within the limits of the counties of which we write at that time was all the territory lying between the St. Lawrence and Parliament of Canada.

Enclosed within the limits of the counties of which we write at that time was all the territory lying between the St. Lawrence and Oltawa Rivers on the one hand, and the eastern boundary of Glengary and western boundary of Dundas respectively, each extending north 24' west from the St. Lawrence to the Ottawa, on the other hand; thus including the major portion of the present County of Prescott, all of Russell, and about half of Carleton, as at present constituted.

The first Parliament (first session) created radical changes in the districts formed by Lord Dorrhester, at the same time making provision for the crection of court-houses and jails within the same. The name of Lunchburg was changed to that of the "Eastern District," and a jail and court-house ordered to be creeted therein "at the town of ""ow Johnstown, in the township of Edwardsburg."

During the second Parliament a portion of the present County of Can. 500 was set aside as a separate county, thus diminishing the erritory of the County of Dundas, previous to which, however, by 34 Geo. III., cap. 10 (C. C.), it was decreed that, "for the case and e-convenience of the people," a second court-house and jail-should be built in the Eastern District, the Town of Counwall being named as the bailt in the Eastern District, the Town of Senderland Hereof.

By statute 38 Geo. III., cap. 5, entitled, "An Act for the better "division of this Province," the limits of the three Counties of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry were laid down as follows: The County of Glengarry to contain "the Townships of Charlottenburg, Lameaster, and Kenyon, together with the tract of land claimed by the St. Regis "Indians, and such islands as lie wholly or in greater part opposite "thereto." The County of Stormont was previded with the Townships of Council Townships of the Aller of the County of Stormont was previded with the Townships of the County of Stormont and Roxborough, with a provision as to of Cornwall, Osnabruck, Finch, and Roxborough, with a provision as to "thereto." The County of Stormont was provided with the Townships of Cornwall, Osnabruck, Finch, and Roxborough, with a provision as to islands similar to that enjoyed by Glengarry; while the same provision was extended to Dundas County, along wi'. In the decree that it should consist of the Townships of Williamsberg, Matilda, Mountain, and Winchester, It will be noticed that the Township of Lochiel is not mentioned in this Act, which leads us to the belief that the printer of the stature must have accidentally omitted it, or that its present territory was at that time embraced within the limits of one or more of the other townships of Glengarry.

Meanwhile the Counties of Prescott and Russell had been creeted, and by the sixth section of the Act last mentioned, it was "further ematted that the Counties of Bergarry, Stormont, Dundas, Prescott, "and Russell do constitute and form the Eastern District," but by the provisions of 56 Gen. III., cap. 2, the Counties of Prescott and Russell were creeted into a separate district, called the "Ottawa District," and thus the Eastern District was reclued, step by step, until its limits were identical with those of the three Counties of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry; and thus it remained, until, by the provisions of the Minicipal Act, which came into force in 1850, the term "district" was selicated, and has now become obsolete, except in the newer parts of the country, where the municipal organization is not yet perfected.

the country, where the municipal organization is not yet perfected.

A sketch of the political history of these counties, however brief would be wanting in a material part if the personnel of the Parlia mentary representatives should be omitted. We have found thi mentary representatives shown on minute whether the month that secondingly difficult to obtain, especially as regards the period beyond which the memory of the "oldest inhabitants" of the different committee extends, but we present such information as a vast amount of inquiry and research has enabled us to collect, which, if not correct in all points, will at least be found as nearly so as careful effort could make it.

The journal of the first Parliament of Upper Canada, which met at Niagara Sept. 17th, 1792, commences with the following paragraph, viz:— The House having proceeded to the election of a Speaker, "John Machonell, Esq., one of the members for the County of Glen-"garry, was unanimously elected to be Speaker." Further than that be journal contains no list of members, but we find the name of Alex. Campbell among the records, and Mr. Croil, in his history before re-Gampoon along the resides and all the residency of the re "of LYING CAMPRILL." The member for Glengarry who was then elected Speaker was a talented voning man, only about twenty-four years old, of the celebrated "Greenfield" clan of Macdonells. He represented the county at intervals for several years; was appointed Attorney-General; held a commission as Colonel in the Militia; and was killed.

General; held a commission as Colonel in the Militia; and was killed while serving under General Brock at Queenston Heights. No list of members appears in the journals of the second Parliament, so we have to resort largely to conjecture in order to determine the representatives from the Eastern District. However, in the Session of 1799 the name of "Robert J. D. Gray, member for the County of "Stormont," appears in company with that of a brother member at the fost of a document informing the Speaker of the death of the member for Addington. In the record of divisions we also notice the names of "Capt." Farser and "Col." Macolonell, the former of whom we learn was the representative of Dandas, and the latter was undoubtedly the ex-Sueaker above referred to

was the representative of Dundas, and the latter was undoubtedly the ex-Speaker above referred to.

The third Parliament convened for its first session at York May 28th, 1804, and as a full list of the members appears in the journal of that session, we notice the names of those sent from the Eastern District to have been—for Glengarry, Alexander Macdonell and Angus Mac-donell; for Stormont and Russell, Robert J. D. Gray; and for Dundas, Leady W. Govern Coverilla Westley and the Coverilla State of th doned; for stormout and russen, roosers J. D. Gray; and for Doness, Jacob Weager. Cornelius Munro officated as Returning Officer in this election for the Counties of Dundas and Glengarry; while James Anders son did the like for Stormout and Russel; and at the next general election, in 1805 (beyond which we have no record of this nature), each of these gentlemen officiated as before,

After the natural death of the third, the fourth Parliament was elected in 1805, but in the meantime the County of Prescott had been erected and annaxed to Glengarry for representative purposes, the names of the members elected to represent those two counties on that occasion being Alexander Macdonell and W. B. Wilkinson; while Mr.

Gray was re-elected for Stormont and Russell, and John Crysler was chosen as the representative of Dundas. Glengarry was now for the se time honoured by the choice of a Speaker from among her representa crossen as the persecutative of Dandas. Glengarty was now for the second time honoured by the choice of a Speaker from among her representatives, the member on whom the definity was on this occasion conferred being Mr. Alexander Maxionell, another of the Greenfield family, whose portrait, hanging in the lobby of the House of Commons, suggests his portrait, hanging in the lobby of the House of Commons, suggests his age to have been less than thirty at that period, at the same time denoting a mild disposition, firm resolution, and broad intellect.

The journals containing the proceedings of the first sessions of the fifth and sixth Parliaments respectively are missing from the Parliamentary Library, and though the writer permed at great length the minutes of other sessions of these Parliaments, he found no items by which he could ascertain the names of the eastern representatives; still, in Croil's "Dundas" we are informed that Col. John Crysler represented that count, during those rays Parliaments as also during the seventh.

in Croil's "Dundac" we are informed that Col. John Crysler represented that county during those two Parliaments, as also during the seventh, in which his name is not included in the list in the journal.

Up to this time there appears to have been no very violent differences of political opinion to against the country, but the shadow of the "coming event" soon appears! in the overbearing attitude of those politicians who subsequently developed into the notorious "Family Compact, which, as we before remarked, received much of its strength from the Eastern District.

Eastern District.

The next general election took place in 1817 to select members of the seventh Parliament, and in this year we find Glengarry (from which Present had meanwhile been detached) electing as her representatives Messrs, Alex, McMartin and John Cameron, while the members chosen by Stormout and Russell, and Dundas, were respectively Philip Van by Stormont and Russell, and Dandas, were respectively Philip Van Kaughnet and John Crysler.

During this Parliament Russell was detached from Stormont, and the latter was authorized to elect two instead of one member as formerly, and that one in compaction with Russell; and thus the "Compact," which had now been regularly "born and brought forth," contrived to secture a couple of ex'ra seats, as the members elected for Storment on this occasion were devotees of said "Compact." The names of the this occasion were devoices of said "Compact. The names of the various representatives from this district in this Parliament were; from Glengarry, Alex. Maedonell and Alex. McMartin; from Stormout, Philip Van Kaughnet and Archibald McLean; and from Dundas, Peter Shave.

The elections to the minth Parliament, which first met in 1826, resulted in the return of Alex, Macdonell and Duncan Cameron for Glengarry, Messes, McLean and Van Känghnet being re-elected for Stormont, and Col. John Crysler for Dundas. The return of Mr. Cameron of Glengarry was by the House declared void, on account of some alleged vero-doclares on the part of the Returning Officer, and a new election resulted, as we suppose, in the regular election of Mr. Cameron, as his name appears in the divisions of the mest session. There is no list extant of the members of the tenth Parliament, but it is certain that Dundas sent two representatives to the House on this occasion, and from Croil's "Dundas" we learn the names of those two

Mr. Archibald McLean was-chosen Speaker of this Parliament; and, after a further parliamentary curver, as will be seen, he passed the latter part of his life as Chief Justice of Upper Canada, a position to which, if his devotion to the Family Compact "crasted any claim, he was enumently entitled. During this Parliament the Town of Cornwall, which at the time

During this Parliament the Town of Cornwall, which at the time contained but a few hundred inhabitants, was set aside as a separate constituency, thus creating a little "pocket brough" where the "Compact" could always be sure of a supporter. To the twelfth Parliament Hon, Arch, Mchean was elected from Cornwall; Donald Macdonell and Alex, Chisholm from Glengarry: Win, Bruce and Donald E. Macdonell from Stormont; and John Cook and Peter Shaver from Dundas. Of these, Messr, Chisholm, C. d., Shaver, and Bruce voted with the Reformers in their attempts to scenic a redress of the abuses practised for so many years by the "Family Compact." The first session of this Parliament was held in 1835, when the celebrated Marshall Spring Bidwell was chosen Speaker: and though the Reformers largely outnumbered their opponents, the latter, through the peculiarity of the Constitution, held the situation in their own hands, and declined to vote themselves out of office, which it had long since become apparent they held merely for the emoduments connected therewith. The political complexion of this Parliament being too thoroughly Reform to please the party in power, it was dissolved to suit their political exigencies, and to the thirteenth Parliament, which assembled in 1837, Donald Macdonell and Alex, Chisholm were elected from Glengarry; Geo. S. (afterwards Judge) Jarvis for Cornwall; Hon, Arch, McLean and D. E. Macdonell for Stormont, and John Cook and Peter Shaver for Dundas. In Glengarry, the general election of 1844 witnessel a contest between John Sandfield Macdonald and Col. Macdonell, of whom the fearmer was successful; while in Stormont, Donald E. Macdonell defended Hon. Mr. McLean; the members elected for Cornwall and Dundas being respectively Solomon Y. Chesley and John Cook.

The election to the second Parliament of united Canada occurred in 1844, soon after the dissolution of the first Parliament by Lord Met-calfe. At this election John Sundfield Macdenald was again elected for Glengarry, this time over Dr. Grant, of Charlottenburg: Mr. Mc-Lean defeated Donald Æ. Macdonell in Stormont; George McDonell was elected for Dundas; and Roland McDonald for Cornwall; but the latter gentleman resigned soon thereafter to accept the County Judge-ship of Lincoln and at the same time create a vacancy for John Hillyard Cameron, who was elected in his stead, and received the portfolio of Solicitor-General in the Cabinet of the day.

The second Parliament was also dissolved before its time had expired, and new elections were held in June, 1848, at which J. Sandfield Macdonald was again successful in Glengarry, defeating Dr. Grant for the second time. In Cornwall the context was particularly exciting, but Mr. Hillyard Cameron was this time defeated by Mr. Roderick Macdonald. The context in Stormont was triangular, the opposing candidates being Donald .E. Macdonell, Dr. Archibald, and Mr. Alexander McLean, the two former of whom were Reformers and the latter a Conservative. Of these, Mr. Macdonell was successful. The number of candidates who were willing to sacrifice themselves and their fortunes on the political altar increased toward the west, and in Dundae, at that election, the struggle was quadrangular, the candidates being George McDonell, Edward Brouse, Peter Shaver, and John P. Crysler, a son of Cel. John Crysler, and the present Registrar of Dundas County. Crysler was successful in defeating his three opponents on this

The next general election, which occurred in 1852, resulted in a viejory for the Reformers. J. Sandheld Macdonald was elected for Glengarry without opposition, this being the first "walk over" enjoyed by

This Parliament assembled at Quebes for its first session August 16th, 1852, and elected John Sandield Macdonald Speaker. At the assission of 1854 a dead-lock occurred owing to the nearly equal division of the opposing political parties, and a dissolution took place June 21st of that year without having passed a sindle 1811.

The general election for representatives to the fifth Parliament came on in July, and Parliament assembled on the 5th of September following. The several members returned from the Eastern District at this election were. Hon. J. Sandfield Macdonald, for Glengarry, again by acclamation; Dr. Roderick Macdonald, for Cornwall; Wm. During the latter part of the same year (1857) new elections were held, and Glengarry was again the scone of a political contest; this time between Donald A. Mac-lonald, a brother of Hon. John Sandfield, and the pressit Licent, Governor of Ontario, and Archbald Fraser. The former gentleman, who ran in the Referm interest, was successful. The political connection of Hon. It was during this Parliament that the Government of the day was defeated on a motion of want of confidence, couched in the expression of that it was a cause of deep regret that Her Majesty had been advised to select Ottawa as the capital of the country." The Carther-Macdonald Ministry was then formed, which perpetrated the notorious "double-shuffle," and tided through the difficulties of their narrow majority till the expiration of the sixth Parliament.

At the general election following (in 1861) D. A. Macdonald was again elected for Glengarry, this time by acclamation, while Hon. Sandfield Macdonald successfully contested Cornwall with Mr. Andrew Elliett. Hon. Hen, Sandfield Macdonald also stood for election in Stormont the same year, but was defeated by Mr. Samuel Ault, of Aultsville, who was the candidate of the Reformers, which party appear to have taken unbrage at some recent acts of Hon. J. S. Macdonald. The same election witnessed another revulsion of political feeling in Dundas, where John S. Ross, Conservative, was elected over J. W. Cook, Reformer. This seventh Parliament assembled at Quebec early in 1862, and in May during that session the Government was defeated on its Militia Bill; whereupon the Macdonald-Sicotte (Reform) Ministry was formed, which was in turn defeated, during the Glovine session on Derriament was was in turn defeated during the following session, and Parliament was at one dissolved.
In 1863 the elections to the eighth Parliament of united Canada

(which was also the last one prior to Confederation) were held, resulted in the return by acclamation of Hon. J. S. and D. Macdonald for Cornwall and Glengarry respectively, while in Storr and D. A. At the succeeding elections in the summer and fall of 1872, the Reformers made their now celebrated "big push" to drive the Ministry out of the Treasury, but failed, principally from lack of votes to elect their candidates. This election witnessed no change in the representation of Glengarry, but in Cornwall Dr. Darby Bergin was elected by acchanation, thus assuming the place so long filled by the Hon. of this election, in which the late member, Mr. John S. Ross, was defeated by Mr. Win. Gibson, of Morrisburg, who ran in the Liberal interest.

On the explosion of the "Pacific Scandal," and Mr. Mackenzie's assumption of office in 1873, the House was dissolved to allow the people to pronounce judgment on the "indiscretion" of the Macdonald Administration, and, as is well known, the verific of the people was adverse to the perpetrators of that political crime, and they were left in the shades of Opposition during that entire Parlament.

At the general election of 1874 Hon. D. A. Macdonald again took the field in Glemgarry, where he succeeded in defeating Mr. A. G. Grant. In Cornwall the contest lay between Dr. Bergin, the late member, a supporter of Sir John A. Macdonald's policy, and Alex. F. Macdonald, a brother of the bate Hon. John Sandheld. The latter of these gentlemen was elected, but was unested on the petition of Dr. Bergin, and a new election occurring, the same gentlemen contested the seat with the same result as before, after which Mr. Macdonald sat through that entire Parliament. The candidates in Sormont were Messractyril Archibald, the late member, Liberal; and J. R. Urysler, Conservative, of whom the former was accessful. Duales pronounced in favour of its hat previous choice on this occasion, re-electing Mr. Winglishon, Liberal, over Mr. Henry G. Governorship of Ontario, being succeeded in the Commons by Archibald McNab, who defeated Dr. McMillan at the polls, but being onset on petition, was again elected this time over Mr. John Maclennan, the Conservative candidate and the present member for the county.

Nothing further occurred to ruffle the quictude which Dominion modifices had assumed in these counties till the general election of 1878, which wrought such a revolution of political sentiment over all Camada, and left the Liberal leaders with a d a tried and talented representative, in whom are combined the high intelligence, sound judgment, and extensive learning which go to make the successful parliamentarian with the courteous affability of the thorough gentleman.

In Dundae, at the same election, Mr. John S. Ross, who had served several previous terms, was elected over Mr. Andrew J. Latlamme, of West Winchester, who run in the Liberal interest.

Turning our attention to local or provincial politics, we find that on the confederation of the provinces, each was provided with the means of local self-government through the agency of a Provincial Legislature took place in 1867. The candidates in Glengarry were respectively James Craig and Archibald McNab, the former being an adherent of the policy of Hon. Sandfield Macdonald, which, by the way, was now discountenanced by the Liberal party generally; and the latter the candidate of the straight out Liberals. Mr. Grant succeeded in securing his constituency, he having, as before stated, been elected to the Commons at the same time. This, however, was before the law was passed prohibiting dual representation.

In Stormont the contest was between Messrs, William Colqubous, Conservative, and A. J. Cockburn, Liberal, of whom the former gentleman was successful in gaining the seat; while for Dundas, S. S. Cook, Liberal, was elected over John Doran, Conservative, and A. J. Cockburn, Conservative, and A. S. At the election for members of the Legislature during the second Parliament, Mr. Craig was again elected for Glengarry, his opponent on this occasion being James P. Maelennan, Q.C., of Toronto, who ran in the Liberal interest. Hon, J. S. Macdonald was again elected by acclamation for Cornwall, but by his death in June, 1872, the seat became vacant, and John G. Mr. Colquinoun defeated James Bethune, Q.C., of Toronto, in the contest for the representation of Stormont at this election by the narrow majority of five; but being ousted from the seat on petition, he was defeated by Mr. Bethune at a new election, held in 1872. In Dundas, Mr. S. S. Cook was re-elected in 1871, his opponent being Mr. Alex. McDonald, of Mattida.

When the Mowat Administration appealed to the country in 1875, Mr. A. J. Grant, of Charlottenburg, defeated Mr. Archibald McNab, of Lochiel, for the representation of Glengarry. Mr. Snetsinger, the late member for Cornwall, although a supporter of the Mowat Government, was opposed by Alexander F. McIntyre, a son of the sheriff of these countries, a young man of fine abilities and wide personal popularity, at the present time a member of the legal firm of Walker & McIntyre, of Ottawa, but then a resident of Cornwall. Mr. McIntyre represente the more advanced wing of the Liberal party, while Mr. Snetsinger ran as what is known in Cornwall political friends of the late Hon. J. Sandfield MacIonald. The result was the defeat of Mr. Snetsinger by a majority of five votes; but Mr. McIntyre's return being petitioned against, the election was declared void, and in the new election which followed between the same candidates, Mr. McIntyre was defeated by seven of a majority. seven of a majority.

In Stormont, in 1875, Mr. Colquhoun suffered his second defeat at the hands of Mr. Bethune; while in Dundas, Mr. Andrew Broder, Conservative, defeated Mr. S. S. Cook, who had held the seat during two terms; but being unseated for irregularities in the election, Mr. Broder was again returned in September, 1875, the Reform candidate on this occasion being Mr. Daniel Rose.

The particulars of the next succeeding general election to the Legislature, which occurred June 5th, 1879, are still fresh in the minds of the public. But one of the late members was returned from these counties, that one being Mr. Brotler, of Dundas, who defeated T. F. Chamberlair, M.D., of Morrisburg, by a majority of 81. Mr. Bethune having retired from political life, for the present at least, the Liberals of Stormont selected as their candidate Mr. C. C. Farran, who was opposed and defeated by Mr. Joseph Kerr, by a majority of two votes, but a petition having been filed against the election of the latter gentleman, it remains to be seen who the actual representative of this countriences in the fourth to be seen who the actual representative of this constituency in the fourth

There was no contest in Cornwall, owing, as each party avers, to the fear of defeat entertained by the opposite party, and the result was the election by acclamation of Mr. Wm. Mack, a liberal Reformer, but a gentleman who will not be bound by the chains of political factions.

gentleman who will not be bound by the chains of political factions.

The candidates who contested the seat for Gliengarry were respectively James Rayside, of Martintown, Liberal, and Donald McMaster, of Montreal, Conservative, the latter gentleman being elected.

Having thus briefly traversed the political history of these counties from the first inception of representative government in Ganada down to the present day, we will close this sketch with a few remarks pertinent to the occasion. From among the representatives elected from these counties many have risen to high political distinction; from among them have the Speakers of five different Parliaments been chosen, as before stated; several have been among the members of different Cabinets that have from time to time risen and fallen stranded on the shores of political defeat; at least one of them has been the Prime Minister of united Canada, and later of Ontario; another of the ex-members from these counties to-day occupies the exalted position of Lieutenant-Governor of the fairest Province in the Dominion; and taken all in all, the representatives past and present of these counties form a class of men the equal of whom, intellectually, no territory of like extent in the Province (unisite the cities) has ever sent to Parliament, and of whose integrity and ability their constituents may well feel proud.

MILITARY HISTORY

We may properly designate the settlement of the Loyalists here as the first and most momentous event in the military history of the counties; for although they came not marching in platoons, and currying the sword, firebrand, and other implements of British warfare-though they had "hung the sword in the hall, the spear on the wall," and were seeking only the conquest of the forest—yet the very fact of their settlement here resulted from canses which were themselves the direct effects of the late Revolutionary War, in which they had so gallantly but unsucces-full supported the Royal cause.

The history of the early settlement of this territory may therefore, per late to called a part of its military history, as it was accomplished by a race of men of an eminently military character, who had contested, under the Red Croso of St. George, the right to empire on many a hard fought field. These remarks apply more particularly to the pioneers of Stormont and Dundas, though there were among the earliest settlers of Glengarry a considerable number of Scotch Loyalist who had not only been rendered conspictions by their services to the Croson during the Revolution, but were destined to become prominent in the future battles of the lion against the eagle, as we shall see amon.

The period intervening between the original location of the military inhabitants of these counties and the outbreak of the Anglo-American war in 1812 was not characterized by any incidents calculated to rekindle the martial spirit which was now reposing in a dormant state among them; but the declaration of war by Congress in the year mentioned appeared to infuse the "U. E.'s" and their sons with the same spirit of their settlement in the forests of Canada. This feeling resulted in an immediate flight to arms of not only a large proportion of the younger class of men, but also of many old veterans whose lant-American pregulaces were unabated by a like period of profound peace and friendly commercial intercourse.

The irst important engagement of this prejudices were unanted by a fixe period in product period commercial intercourse.

The first important engagement of this war in which we have any record of the participation of Eastern District men was the battle of Queenston Heights, 13th October, 1812, in which Col. John Macdonell, M.P. for Glengarry, was killed, in company with General Brock, to whose staff he appears to have been attached.

whose start he appears to have been attached.

The next affair of importance with which the Militia of these counties were identified was the unsuccessful attack on Ogdensburg by a force of Regulars and Militia, including the company commanded by Captain Morgan of Osnabruck; and in January, 1813, the 1st Glengary Infantry were engaged in the second attack on Ogdensburg, which resulted in the capture of that city. capture of that city.

were engaged in the second attack on Ogdensburg, which resulted in the capture of that city.

Nothing further of special importance occurred in this locality till November, 1813, when the American General, Wilkinson, proceeded with his army from Glenidier Island, near Kingston, down the St. Lawrence, intending to form a junction with General Hampton near Montreal, and reduce that city to their possession. As is well known, however, they were unsuccessful in this campaign, owing to the defeat of the former at Crysler's Farm, and of the latter about the same time at Chatauguay. Referring again to Gen. Wilkinson, we find that as the advance boats of his flottila approached Point Iroquois on the afternoon of Sunday, Nov. 8th, they were fired upon by a picket of Durdas Militia who were concealed on the Point. The firing aroused a body of about 200 of their comrades who had been concealed in the hollow in rear of the Point, and this body, hurrying to the spot under command of Captain Monroe, discharged another voiley at the Americans, who were taken at a double disadvantage, from having to contend with the current, which is very swift at that point, and with an enemy of whose numbers they were ignorant. In consequence of this unexpected reception, the advance quant of the Americans headed for the opposite shore, and came to a balt in the little bay at that point, while the main body of the flottila, still nearly a mile above, observing the abstance guard, landed on the Canadian shore, where the troops disembarked, and immediately proceeded in quest of the for, who, on observing the approach of the enemy, retreated pell-mell to the woods, where the lay concealed till the Americans had passed along down the river and encamped about mile below the present Village of Irroquois.

a mile below the present Village of Iroquois.

Here Wilkinson remained inactive in camp until the Tuesday noon following, when he re-embarked and proceeded down the river to Cook's Bay, near the townline between Williamsburg and Osnabruck, whence the shore was lined with his basts as far down as Charlesville (now Aultsville). He established his headquarters in Cook's Hotel, and sont Guneral Brown abead to capture the military stores at Cornwall. Following General Brown in his march, we find that he encountered 1,300 Glengarry Militia at Hoople's Creek, near Dickenson's Landing; but they were disposed of by a few rounds from a cannon accompanied by infantry fire; and being undisciplined and poorly armed, they were led by their commander, Major Dennis, into the interior, out of harm's way, while General Brown proceeded to Cornwall, to find that the Government stores had been removed to the interior beyond his reach.

In the meantime Gen. Wilkinson remained in Williamsburg until Col. Morrison, in cosmand of some British Regulars and Canadian Militia, came in view, having followed the Americans down from Kingston, gathering strength as he proceeded; whereupon Wilkinson, not seeking a battle, prepared to re-embark for Montreal on the morning of the 11th, but the forces under Col. Morrison having moved down to within a short distance of them the evening of the 10th, and three British gund-basts having taken up an advantageous position in the river British gun-boats having taken up an advantageous position in the river at the same time, Morrison determined to bring on a battle with the Meantime Morrison had established his headquarters in Col. Cryster's house, and decided upon his plan of action. A brief description of the battle ground will assist the reader's comprehension of what followed. The bank of the river is traversed by the main highway, which at this point runs quite close to the stream, though further east it leaves the immediate bank some distance, owing to a curve in the river. Just east of Col. Cryster's house, a road forty feet in width runs at right angles to the river, and on either side of this road was built a substantial wall flarge celar logs. To the east of this road was built a substantial wall flarge celar logs. To the east of this road was "Crysler's Farm" proper, the clearing on which extended back from the river about haf east mile, where it ended in a swamp which was impassable for troops. The whole field to the east forms a plateau elevated about twenty-five feet above the lovel of the river.

Early in the morning of the 11th November the British gun-boats opened fire on the Americans, and convinced them of the impracticability of re-embarking in safety, so they made preparations for a battle. In regard to the manner in which and the precise parties by whom the battle was formally opened, the conflicting descriptions thereof by different eye-witnesses prevent our determining; but having consulted several of the participants, in addition to Mr. John P. Crysler, who was then a boy eleven years of age, and who, from his position in the cellar of his father's house on that occasion, had ample facilities for learning what took place, we will give the version which, after comparing notes, appears to us the most reasonable.

It appears, in spite of statements of participants to the contrary, that the British line of battle was formed along the "Nine-mile Road," before described as running out into the township at a right angle from the river, and that they had the protection afforded by the heavy log fence serviced to return the summary of the protect of the value, and

With the repulse of General Covington's corps the battle may be said to have terminated, for the British were too "cautions" to follow up their temporary victory, and, contenting themselves with the capture of a number of prisoners and cavalry horses, they allowed the defeated Americans to retreat without further molestation.

Americans to retreat without further molestation.

The action lasted only about four hours, having commenced, as some allege, about nine in the morning and terminated about one in the atternoon, while others, who claim to have taken an active part, declare the beginning to have been about noon and the conclusion about four in the atternoon. In fact, the British commander did not know whether the battle was over till about duck the same evening, when a party of scouts, sent to impuire whether the enemy considered himself defeated, discovered that Wilkinson had re-embarked his army and proceeded down the river. He was joined at Barnhart's Island by Gen. Brown's brigade, before referred to; and receiving intelligence of the defeat of Gen. Hampton at Chatauguay, he proceeded to Fort Covington, N. Y., where he went into winter quarters; and thus the invasion of eastern Canada ended disastrously and ingloriously to the Americans.

Canada ended disastrously and ingloriously to the Americans.

The forces engaged on the British side in this battle included the sorth Regiment of the Line; detachments of the Canadian Fencibles and Voltigeur Corps, the latter under command of Lieut.-Col. Pierson; at least a portion of the 19th Regiment; a troop of Provincial Dragons; and various detachments of the Sedentary Militia from Dundas and Stormont, under the command of nobody in particular, so far as we could learn. Regarding the numbers engaged on either side, the British force did not exceed 1,300 effective men (including a body of about 30 Indians), while the Americans admitted their numbers to have hem "between 1,690 and 1,890;" and the defeat of this army by an inferior force is a substantial commentary, not on the greater bravery of the British, but on the superiority of regular soldiers, ably commanded, over undisciplined and untried troops indifferently led; especially when the former are acting on the defensive within their own territory.

The American loss in this engagement is admitted by General Willers.

The American loss in this engagement is admitted by General Wilkinson to have been 3 officers and 90 men killed, and 16 officers and 221 men wounded; while the British loss was 3 officers and 21 men killed, men wounded; while the British loss was 3 officers and 21 men killed, and 8 officers and 137 men wounded.

Previous to this engagement a few unimportant skirmishes has occurred along the river front of these counties, in which British convoys ascending the St. Lawrence with military stores were attacked by small detachments of Americans. In each of these the militar of these counties took a creditable part, under the command of numerous "capitains"—Ault, Merckley, Wood, McMillan, Slaver, Mouroe, Clark, Macdonell, and others—in sethicient number to remind one of Artenus Ward's company during the American Civil War, in which there were thirty-one captains and one private; but it is understood the proportionate number of privates was somewhat greater in the Milita than in this famous corps of A. Ward's.

than in this famous corps of A. Ward's.

After the battle of Civyler's Farm and the retreat of the Americans from Canadian territory, the military prospects justified the dismissal to their homes of the Militia, and a general order to that effect was issued in November of the same year, in which their abacture gravity of the erective of their country, and their subsequent gallantry and zeal, were highly cubedized by the commander of the forces.

Once again in their history the people of these countries metaphorically "beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning books," or, in other words, they disearded the implements of war for those of agriculture, and from that time till the outbroak of the Mackenzie Robellion in 1837, the country enjoyed a profound repose from the distressing incidents of military strife.

On the inception of that political fraces, however, the people of those countries again substantially demonstrated their devotion to the Government, an oppressive oligarchy though it was, and several corps were formed in this district to march against the insurgents. The opportunity soon presented itself, a considerable force of insurgents having soized the famous "windmill" a short distance below Prescott, whence the Milita from all the surrounding country, as well as several regiments of Regulars, were called to dislolge them. Each of the three countries cantributed a contingent of troops to the Government force on this occasion, the Dundas battalion, under command of Col. John Crysler, numbering about 300 men. The Stormont battalion was under the command of Col. John Government for the command of Col. John R. Wood, who had at the first boom of the Rebellion joined a company which was formed to protect the fort at Coteau du Lac, but was transferred from that command for the purpose of raising a company in Osnabruck. There were also present at the windmill a force of Glengarry men commanded by a Capt. Macdonald, and it is well known to all Canadians how this force, which, combined with Militia and Regulars from other parts of the Province, aggregated almost 1,000 men, succeeded after several days fighting during which they suffered numerous repulses) in reducing the strong-hold of the rebels by the aid of heavy artillery, and expturing the remnants of a force which originally numbered about 200 men.

The Papineau Rebellion, which broke out in Lower Canada the same year, called into active service the 1st Glengarry Militia, several members of which were captured at Beauharnois by the rebels on loazed the steamer Henry Broughston, and among those so captured was the present Sherilf Melntyre of these counties, who was at the time serving in the capacity of surgeon on the staff of the regiment. These prisoners were kept confined in the house of the parish priest at Beauharnois until the post was itself captured by a brigade of Government troops, consisting of four Glengarry regiments and two companies of the 74th Regiment of the Line, under the command of Colonel Carmichael. He exists the content of the colonel carmichael on either side.

Beyond the engagements named, there were no encounters during the Rebellion in which the troops from these counties participated, except that the force mentioned as having captured Beauharnois con-tinued to advance into the heart of the Lower Province till the last vestige of the insurrection was obliterated, after which they returned to their homes, and were dismissed from service with the congratulations and complianced incident to such because and compliments incident to such accasions and compliments incident to such occasions.

Theneeforward to the time of the Fenian raid in 1866, there was no occasion to utilize the services of the Sedentary Militia, which still maintained an existence in each of these three counties; but when those marauders invaded our shores in the year named, the patriotism of these eastern men was again substantially attested by the alacrity with which they voluntered for the defence of their firesides; but the excitement and danger proving only temporary, they soon subsided into the quiet routine of everyday life, and nothing has since occurred to disturb the tranquillity of the nation.

But as a safeguard, to be utilized in cases of emergency, our present excellent militia system was inaugurated, and under its provisions there exists a battalion of active Infantry and two regiments of Selentary Militia within the united counties, who are at any and all times ready and willing to shield their native land, with their lives if need be, from any danger that may threaten, or any foe that may assail its peace or integrity. The battalion referred to is the 59th Stormont and Glongarry Infantry, with headquarters at Cornwall.

The staff of this regiment is composed as follows, viz.:—Lieut.-Colonel, Durby Bergin, M.D., M.P.; Majors, Duncan B. Macleman and James H. Bredin; Adjutant, J. F. Smart (Capt.); Paymaster, Cyril Archibald (Capt.); Quartermaster, C. H. Wood; Surgeon, Dr. Alguire.

MUNICIPAL HISTORY.

The history of municipal institutions in Canada, or rather in that part thereof which was formerly known as Upper Canada, by no means partakes of an ancient character. By the "municipal history" of the Eastern District we de not refer to the various Acts passed at intervals during the comparat. ely early political history of the country, nor to the numerous petty local offices created thereby; neither do we include under this head the period during which Canada was ruled by an oligarchy, and her internal affairs were administered by judges and magistrates many of whom had been instrumental in the framing of the laws which it became their duty to administer. This eminently unsatisfac-tory state of affairs receded before an advancing age of political enlightenment; but it was not until 1842 that municipal government enlightement; but it was not until 1842 that municipal government was established within each and every district as such. The first Parliament of united Canada, at its first session in 1841, passed "An Act to provide for the better internal government of that "part of this Province which formerly constituted the Province of "Upper Canada, by the establishment of local or numicipal authorities "therein;" and by the authority of this Act (which recognized the Eastern District as consisting of the three Counties of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry) the first District Council convened at Cornwall on the 8th of February, 1842. The title of the representatives constituting this body was "District Councillor," and the manner of their election was substantially the same as that in which the municipal officers are at the present day elected. The executive officer of the Council then, as now, was the Warlen, but instead of being chosen from among and by his fellow Councillors, as is now the rule, he was commissioned to the office by the Government, and held his position independently of the Council.

The gentleman thus honoured by the Government on this occasion was the Hon. Alexander Fraser, who continued to discharge the duties of that honourable office till the operation of the "Municipal Act," which came into force in 1850, made the Wardens elective as at present.

The following is the list of gentlemen under whose supervision municipal government was initiated in the Eastern District (they having been cipal government was initiated in the Eastern District they having been the Conneillors elected for the year 1842, together with the names of the municipalities which they respectively represented, viz.:—Charlottenburg, John Cameron and Kenneth McLughlin; Cornwall Township, Donald O. The status of the counties finances can be only approximately deter-mined from the Auditors' Report of 1878, inasmuch as they neglect to give a statement of the assets and liabilities of the corporation; still, on give a statement of the assets and liabilities of the corporation; still, on carefully pensing said report, we notice no items which would lead to the belief that there are any liabilities of a substantial or permanent character—any other, in fact, than current notes and the like given to meet temporary emergencies. The total receipts by the County Treasurer for ISTS appear to have been $29,343,95, of which $19,005,29 was collected from the various mannicipalities throughout the counties as their "County Rates;" $3,512,66 was received from the Treasurer of Ontario to defray the expenses of criminal justice in these counties, and the balance was collected in miscellaneous ways. The expenditures included grants to Stormont Public Schools of $55,28; Dundas do, $1,082,49; and Glenagary dos. $77,232; and grants to Stormont High included grants to Stormont Public Schools of $555.28; Dundas do., $1,082.49; and Glengarry do., $772.32; and grants to Stormont High Schools of $8,680.09; Dundas, do., $1,985.38; and Glengarry do., $228.62; and the expense of the Jury system, $2,877.00.

There is nothing calling for special comment regarding the finances, in a biltion to the items quotel, except to remark that the apparent freedom from debt of these counties is a matter of sincere congratuation, especially in view of the fact that many of their sister counties are strangling under the incubes of immense debatture debts, and it is gratifying to find a group of three large counties enjoying a state of perfect financial independence.

In regard to the mental calibre of the members who have composed this Council from year to year little need be said, as the names of many of them figure among the Parliamentary records of the Province and Dominion in a manner that obviates the necessity of any puncaries.

from us. It is sufficient to say that popular opinion in the locality where they are best known, the tone and phrase logy of their resolutions, by-laws, &c., and the general satisfactory status of the business of the counties, attest their high intelligence and sound judgment.

counties, attest their high intelligence and sound judgment.
There remains nothing of interest in connection with this body to sorve as the text of further commont; but having cursorily but accurately traced its career from its first inception as a legislative body down to the present time, we will only express the hope that its future may be chracterized by the same degree of intelligence, prudence, and harmony, as have prevailed in its past history.

EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

These united counties are not blessed with any educational institu-tion of a specially high grade, as the first university, college, seminary, or academy has yet to be erected within their limits. Still, that edu-cation is fostered and encouraged is most substantially attested by the large bills which the people annually pay for the dispensation of that blessing, as well as by the large number and high order of school-houses which meet the eye of the traveller through the counties.

Without referring specially to the Public Schools of the counties, we will give a brief sketch of the operations of the High and Model Schools established at intervals throughout the corporation, and would add that the brevity of the sketch is compulsory rather than otherwise, from the fact that the Inspectors have either neglected to make their reports to the Counties' Council of late, or, if received, that body has neglected to have them published in the minutes of their proceedings.

There are five High Schools in the counties, Stormont having but one, in Cornwall; Dundas two, at Morrisburg and Iroquois respectively; and Glengarry one at each of the villages of Alexandria and Williams-town. In addition to the High Schools of Cornwall and Morrisburg, each has a Motel School, which, with another at Martintown in Glen-garry, makes three institutions of that character within the group of counties.

garry, masses the counties.

The High School of Cornwall is an exceptionally fine edifice of rebrick, with stone facings, creeted on Fourth Street in 1877, at a cost of 88,000. The Principal of this school, James Smith, M.A., is a gentleman of large and successful experience in teaching the higher branches of the English language, and under his care the Cornwall High School has assumed a rountation second to none in the Province. The Model to the Lagrania anguage, and under in scate the Cornwait High School has acquired a reputation second to none in the Province. The Model School of Cornwall is presided over by Mr. George Milden, and in addition to these are two Primary or Ward Schools, where the "young idea" is prepared for the development which awaits it in the institutions of higher grade.

The High School of Morrisburg is under the supervision of Principal Irwin Stewart, who has two assistants. The Model and Public Schools of this village are both conducted under one roof, under the control of W. G. Colles, Principal, who receives the aid of four assistants in this branch of the service.

branch of the service.

The present High School of Iroquois was erected in 1845 by John A. Carman on a site donated by Mathew and James Coons, and was by the former gentleman deeded to trustees for school purposes, by whom it was in turn deeded to the counties, who thus acquired this valuable property to use for the benefit of the continuously rising generation through the generosity of three gentlemen, whose sacrifice in the public interest is, we trust, fully appreciated by the people. W. A. Whitney, M. A., presides over the destinies of this school as Principal, ha having served indirent wears in the cancel of taskes within the head. served eighteen years in the capacity of teacher within those walls.

The Public School in the same village is a large, handsome red brick structure, in which three assistant teachers are employed, under the superintendence of Mr. Isaac Newton Guthrie.

These counties are divided into four districts, over each of which an inspector presides, as follows:—Cornwall, R. B. Carman, Inspector; Stormont, Alex. McNaughton, Newington P. #### CORNWALL TOWN AND TOWNSHIP

The history of the original settlement of these two municipalities being to a great extent identical, they are thus grouped for the purpose of convenient description and a condensel recital of fact. The territory included within the corporate limits of the present Town of Conwall was originally a part of the township of the same name, and as such it was settled upon by the pioneers in the same manner as the other portions of the river front, except that at a very early period of its history this was selected as the site of a future town, and such selection led to a somewhat greater concentration of settlers in this particular locality, which ere many years gave it the appearance of a hander, from which tile developed into a village and then into a full diegel town, though the form of municipal government exercised therein has always been that of a town.

The Township of Cornwall is the most easterly of the two townships of Stormont County whose shores are laved by the waters of the St. Lawrence. Its western boundary is formed by the Township of Construck; Roxborrough borders it on the north; and the Township of Charlottenburg, in Glengarry County, forms its eastern limit.

As mentioned elsewhere, this township received its pioneers the same year the other river townships of these counties were colonized, viz., 17-4. The first squad of immigrants, who landed where the Town of Cornwall now stands, were U. E. Loyalists who had served the British Crown under General Cornwallis in the War of the Reviousing, then recently ended, and, if our information is accurate, it was from this fact that the name of "Cornwall" was bestowed upon the settlement thus formed. The person under whose supervision the pioneers located here was Sir John Johnston, elsewhere referred to, who commanded the Royal New York Regiment during the Revolution; but the families who made the first onslaught upon the forest in this locality were from the southern part of New York State and New Jerse, and had not been identified with Sir John before coming here, whereas the great number of Loyalists who followed into their new location were from the Valley of the Mohawk, and had fought in Sir John Johnston's command during the war, as before stated.

The names of some of the families who first located here were the As mentioned elsewhere, this township received its pioneers the same the Valley of the Mohawk, and had fought in Sir John Johnston's command during the war, as before stated.

The names of some of the families who first located here were the Callingers and Alguires, several families of each; the father of the late Chief Justice McLean; the father of Hon. Philip Van Kangknet; Col. Anderson and family; Jonas Wood, Alex. Bruce, Capt John McDonald, the Robertson family, and others whose names we did not obtain. These families had been collected on the Isle of Jesus, near Montreal, where some of them had lived as long as two years previous to their removal to Cornwall, supported by the British Government, they having even at that comparatively early period lost their property in the States in consequence of their adherence to the British cause. The families of many of these men followed, and in some cases preceded them, to the place mentioned, where they found an asylum from the manifold annoyances of the American Patriots. One party in particular, in which was included all the members of Jonas Wosol's family who were unable to bear arms, ascended the Mohawk River in basts to Port Standish (now called Rome), whence they "portaged" over the beight of land to Oneida Lake, across which they held their way to the river forming its outlet. Down this stream they proceeded with great difficulty owing to impediments therein, and after arriving at Oswego they procured batteaux, in which they made the descent of the St. Lawrines to the Isle of Jesus, where they joined or waited for their husbands and fathers. husbands and fathers.

This little colony, then, arrived upon the site of Cornwall in the early summer of 1784, and proceeded to draw their allowances of land from the Government in the manner described in our general history of the early settlement. They were soon followed by the Loyalists from the Mohawk Vale, who were distributed all along the river front from Charlottenburg to Edwardsburg. Among those who located toward the western limit of Cornwall Township were Messrs. Shearer, Groves, Annable, Snetsinger, and others, whose posterity still possess the land which was reclaimed from its primeval state by their dauntless ancestors.

In 1786 as elsewhere stated, a large number of Highland Scotch

Annable, Snetsiager, and others, whose poeterity still possess the land which was reclaimed from its primeral state by their dauntless ancestors. In 17-86, as elsewhere stated, a large number of Highland Scotch emigrants arrived, and settled principally in Glengarry, though a considerable number of them, extending further west, located in Cornwall Township along the banks of the Riviere aux Raisins, and formed the settlement of St. Andrews, about seven miles North of Cornwall. Prominent among these was John Roy Maedonald, whose family consisted at the time of his wife, two sons, and a daughter; and as not only these sons, but others who were born subsequently, were destined to achieve considerable popularity in the counties, a brief resumé of the family history will not be out of place. The eldest son, Æncas, took holy orders in the Roman Catholic Church, and was for many years the occupant of a professor's chair in the Montreal Catholic College, besides having been for a long period employed in the capacity of priest, travelling for miles to attend to the spiritual wants of his people, in the days when not only churches but also settlers' houses were, in some parts of the counties, few and far between. This reverend gentleman lived to the patriarchal age of 80 years, having during his life been the friend of everyholy, regardless of race or creed. The second of these sons, the Very Reverend John Maedonald, spent his life in the service of the Church, and was at one time devasted to the Viear-Genralship of the Diocese of Kingston. He closed his acreer of piety at Lancaster, Glengarry County (of which parish he had long been priest), in March, 1879, at the exceptionally oid age of 97 years. Within a fortnight of the date of his death his brother Donald died at the same place, aged 98 years. Two daughters of this family died at the respective ages of 82 and 73; another brother, Dunean, aged 07; and there are now living of this family, in which longevity is a remarkable characteristic, two brothers and one sister, aged respectively 87, 80, and 77 years, the younger of these being Dr. Roderick Macdonald, Counties Treasurer, who is referred to in our Political History.

With the religious seal characteristic of Roman Catholics, the settlers in and arourd 28, Andrews early took steps toward the crection of a place of worship, which resulted in the building of what is claimed to lave been the first church in the three counties, the date of building the same having been 1789; it being claimed by many well informed persons that this was the pioneer church of Upper Canada as well as of the Eastern District. This celifice, which still stands as a monument of comparatively aucient architecture, has fallen into disuse through having been succeeded by a magnificent stone structure in 1860, the cost of which is stated to have been $75,000. The first priest to hold service in this neighbourhood was Bishop Macdonell, a prelate under whose spiritual supervision the Highland Scotch emigrated to this district.

The topographical characteristics of the Township of Cornwall may be described as a mixture of every character of soil and surface smally found in Canada, with the single exception of high or rugged hills. The land extending for some distance back from the river front is quite level, but the nature of the soil varies from hard clay in some localities to a mass of rocks and boulders slightly intermixed with earth mothers, and anon it relaxes into a sandy plain; while at a distance more remote from the river, fertile fields, rock covered commons, and gloomy swamp succeed each other with faultiess regularity.

The only villages descring of the name in this township are Mould-Nette and Mille Roches, there being two villages of the latter mane, the distinguishing prefix of 'Old' and 'New' being applied to them. The former is situated about five miles above Cornwall, on the river bank, and between the stream and futsmen who used to navigate the St. Lawrence—which is here both swift and rocky, especially the channel between the mainland and Sheick's Island Iying opposite—the name of 'Mille Roches' signifying 'thousand rocks.' On the building of the Grand Trunk Railway the spirit of business descrited the handle described, and howered around the vicinity of the railway depot, across the canal and some distance west of the old handlet. Here a village of some pretensions spring up, which to-day contains several stores, hotel, and intracticas mail, telegraphic, railway, and navigation facilities, the latter supplied by the Conwall Canal, above referred to.

Mouldetter is also and the vicinity of the railway depot, across the singularly next and inviting appearance, about seven miles west of Cornwall, also on the river and cand bank. It contains about half a dozen stores of a good order, the usual number of mechanics' shops found in a place of like size, next and attractive functi capalian Churches, and is especially noted for the beauty of 18 private residences.

Referring after this lengthy digression to the Town of Cornwall., we would describe its location as being on the bank of the St. Lawrence River, 67 miles west of Montreal, 266 miles east of Toronto, and 105 miles east of Kingston at the foot of Lake Ontario. The Listory of the first settlement of the site of this town is given above, and there remain little to say of its career from that date until its incorporation in 1834, except that it was the principal, and in fact the only place of any importance within the Province east of Prescott.

except that it was the principal, and in fact the only place of any importance within the Province cast of Prescott.

Our Political History will have shown that it was made the seat of justice for the eastern part of the Eastern District, by the terms of a statute passed by the second Parliament of Upper Canada toward the immediate close of the last century. Tracing the history of judicial institutions in the district, down from a period as remote as the memories of the present jurists of the counties can compass, we find that as early as 1-812 the law was administered in the Eastern District by Judge David Jones, of Brockville, the statute at that time allowing Judges to practise law within one jurisdiction and administer it within another, and accordingly Judge Jones continued his practice in Brockville, which was then the "Capital" of the Johnstown District. During the same period George S. Jarvis, a practising barrister of Cornwall, officiated as Judge in the Johnstown District, but in 1850 a law came into force making it incumbent upon Judges to reside in the district of their jurisdiction and abstain from the practice of the law, whereupon Judge Jarvis was transferred to the judicial district of the United Counties of Stormont, Dumbas, and Glengarry, and retained his seat on the Banch of these counties until his death in 1878, at the advanced age of $1 years. In 1866 Jacob F. Pringle, Esq., of Cornwall, was appointed to the Junior Judgeship of the counties, an office created in view of the rapidly increasing business of a judicial nature within this jurisdiction; and judicial nature within this jurisdiction; and in June, 1878, he was promoted to the office of Judge, rendered vacant by the death of Judge Jarvis, a position which he still retains.

The first Sheriff of this district was Neil McLean, lather of the late Chief Justice McLean, his appointment taking effect when the district was first erected. He was succeeded after a short incumbency by Donald McDonell, who soon made room for Alexander McMartin, ex-M.P. for Glengarry County; this gentleman being in turn followed by Donald Encas Macionald, who vacated the office in 1850, during which year the present Sheriff, D. E. McIntyre, Esq., was appointed to fill the vacancy.

It is a fact worthy of remark, that of the five different gentlemen who have from time to time tilled this position of honour, emolument, and dignity, not one has died during his incumbency of the office, but, with the single exception of the present able incumbent, each vacated this office for another of presumedly higher honour and greater emolu-

Regarding the municipal history of Cornwall, it appears to have had none separate from that of the township till 1834, in which year it was incorporated as a town, and its nuncipal government entrusted to a "Board of Police." We would here digress to remark that the destruction of the early records of Cornwall Township municipal affairs, coupled with the fact that the recollections of the older inhabitants are at variance with one another in regard to points bearing thereon, has rendered it impossible to trace the municipal history of this corporation. The minutes of the first meeting of the Cornwall Board with the state of the distribution of the cornwall board with the state of the state o has rendered it impossible to trace the minimipal missory of minimipal corporation. The minimites of the first meeting of the Cornwall Board of Police are dated April 21st, 1834, and read as below:—

"The members returned as having been returned to form the Board of Police for the Town of Cornwall, viz., John Chesley and Peter Chesley for the Second or West Ward, and Philip Van Kaughnet and Martin Carman for the First or East Ward, having met—Moved by John Chesley, seconded by Martin Carman, that Archiblatd McLean be chosen as the fifth member of this Board, which was carried unanimously."

There was apparently no further business transacted at this meeting, but on April 26th—vide minutes—they met again, when "it was moved "by Philip Van Kaughnet, seconded by John Chesley, that Archibald "McLean, Esq., be President of this Board. Carried unanimously."

At the meeting held May 1st, "Mr. John Peckman was appointed "Clerk and Collector; Horace Spencer was appointed Surveyor of Streets and High Constable of the Town."

A fair proportion of the citizens were appointed "Bailiffs of the "Town," among whom were the following:—Alexander McDonald (pensioner), Aaron Walsh, Peter Carpenter, William Walker, James Pringle, Esq. was appointed Treasurer of the Board, and Harmonions Cryderman the elder received the appointment of Pound-keeper "for the present," after which the Board adjourned.

The fees and emoluments provided for the several officials were as under:—Clerk, per annum, £12 10s.; Treasurer, 2½ per cent, on all moneys passing through his hands; Collector, 4 per cent, on all moneys passing through his hands; Collector, 4 per cent, on all moneys paid over to the Treasurer; Street Surveyor, £10 per annum; High Constable, 25 per cent, of all fines collected for infractions of the law properties of the people, and t

In 1851 these two offices were again filled by Mr. Mattice; and as this gentleman was for many years, both previous and subsequent to this date, most intimately connected with public affairs in this portion of Camada, a short sketch of his career may not be out of place. For the purposes of the present sketch it is sufficient to say that as early as 1834 he carried on an extensive mercantile business in Cornwall, and enjoyed a social and political standing fully equal to his commercial status. As shown above, he was elected to the Presidency of the Police Town of Cornwall in 1842, and for many years thereafter exerted a leading influence in all matters of local and municipal concern. In politics he was an advanced Reformer and a firm opponent of the tactics of the Family Compact, as well as of their political successors, the Conservative party. A vacancy occurring in the representation of Cornwall during the third Terliannent of mitted Canada, through the elevation to the Bench of the them member, Mr. Mattice was selected by his party to context the seat in the Reform interest, but was defeated by Hon, John Hillyard Cameron, of Toronto. Hon, John Hillyard Cameron, of Toronto.

In 1852 Mr. Mattice was elected to the Assembly from Stormont, and on the dissolution of that Parliament in 1854, was re-elected for the same constituency, his opponents on these occasions having been respectively B. Gordon French and the late Dr. Grant. He was elected to the Mayordly of Cornwall for the last time in 1857, since which date he has lived in retirement from public affairs, and for many years past has also been enjoying a well-carned repose from private business, after having amassed a competency by a long career of successful trade. Mr. Mattice has had the pleasure of seeing one of his sons occupy the seat in Parliament which he vacated, as well as of noting the third consecutive election of another of his sons to the Executive chair of the town, which he himself so long filled; and it is no exaggenation to say that in passing down the decline of life, he has carried with him into the ninth escade of his existence the undiminished espect of his fellows, by whom no other man in this locality was ever more highly, universally, or descreedly esteemed.

Referring again to the municipal representatives of Comwall, we find that in 1852 and 1853 Andrew Elliott filled the combined offices of Mayor and Reeve, continuing in the Mayoralty during 1834, in which year Alexander McDougall occupied the Reeveship, being re-elected to that position each ruc essive year up to and during 1857. The Mayor's chair was filled during 1850 and 1856 by Jacob F. (now Judge) Fringle, who gave place the following, year to William Mattice.

Dr. Rattray and Daniel Macdonell were the incumbents of those two offices in the order named during 1858, the former gentleman retaining his place the year following, when D. E. McIntyre was elected Reeve, a position to which he was re-elected in 1860 and 1861. During the two years last named, S. Y. Cheeley was the occupant of the Mayor's chair, being followed in 1862 by Dr. Allen, who enjoyed a three years' incumbency; Dr. Dickinson was elected Reeve the first of these years, and J. B. Maelennan the two latter. Thene-forward, these offices were respectively filled by G. C. Wood and J. B. Maelennan in 1865; Dr. W. C. Allen and Angus Bechame during the five veras following, during W. There are few more pleasant locations in Canada than that possessed by Cornwall. Its summer climate is delightful, and its latitude places in out of reach of the thanward system in localities more southerly located. There are immense public works here, in the form of the Cornwall Canal, to which access is gained from the river through three massive locks at the east end of the town. This is one of the most important of the St. Lawrence system of canals, which in 1819 was constructed to facilitate the navigation of this great water highway, by avoiding the numerous rapids along its course between Montreal and Prescott. The Cornwall Canal is about twelve miles in length, the western outlet being at Dickinson's Landing. Several years will be required to complete this work of improvement, but when effected, if must redound immensely to the benefit of the country at large and of Cornwall in particular.

The general progress of Cornwall has at no period of her history been very rapid, and in fact it appeared to remain at a complete stand-fill for many years prior to the inception of the cotton and worden factories which it now possesses, of which more anon. In "Smith's Canada," which it now possesses, of which more anon. In "Smith's Canada," as work published about 1852, we find the following passage, which though no doubt literally true, is not calculated to in-pire a very grand idea of the then connerval importance of this town, it says: "Cornwall, the canty town of the three countres, is a neat, quiet, pleasant, old-"fashioned looking place, situated on the bank of the 8t. Lawrence, "..., and there are several good houses scattered through the "town. Cornwall is not a place of any great business, and is in fact "most noted as being the birthplace of that alliance real or imagined "called the "Family Compact," and is usually considered the Old Sarum of Canada. ..., "Cornwall remains rather stationary. In 1845 its population was stated at about 1,000, the actual number of in inhabitants being but 1,500 (per corns)s. Two newspapers, the of inhabitants being but 1,506 (per census). Two newspapers, the **Constitutional and the **Freeholder*, are published weekly."

The "old-fashioned" appearance referred to is retained by the town a great extent, though it is gradually becoming less noticeable in me portions by the prevalence of more modern architecture; but to a great extent, months of more modern architecture, not once portions by the prevalence of more modern architecture, the erection of handsomely designed business abooks upon the principal business attrect only makes more vivid the contrast to the general average, which is formed by the still rather numerous old-time stone atores, with heavy iron shutters protecting the windows, and the general discount of the contrast of convenience and appearance which characterized the period disregard of convenience and appearance which characterized the period of their erection. There are, however, a few business blocks of superior appearance, all of recent construction.

The County Buildings are pleasantly located on Water Street, over-The County Bindings are pleasantly located on Water Street, over-looking the river. Their appearance is rather antiquated, owing in part to their age and in part to the peculiarly sombre has of the stone of which they are constructed, added to their somewhat ancient design. Further toan these and the Town Hall, a large, plain-looking brick edifice erected on Pitt Street in 1866, there is nothing calling for special in the architecture of Cornwall except the schools, which are r to in our sketch of the educational institutions of the counties.

All these mills are run by water-power obtained from the canal, through "by-washes" or funnes. The history of the press of Cornwall is fraught with incidents of the financial failure of many enterprising journals which have from time to time appeared in this town, as well as of the success of others who have here wielded that great engine of e-dilation and instruction— the editor's quill. We are indebted for made of our information on this et to Mr. R. W. Macfarlane, the courteous and talented proprietor of the Reporter. of the Keporter,

The pioneer journal of the counties was the Cornwall Observer, established about 1833, its editor for many years being Christopher Fulton, recently deceased. The Observer was continued for about twelve years, and was not specially partisan in politics, though its support was given to the old Tory party. Second in date of establishment was the Fresholder, first issued in 1846 by Hon J. Sandlield Macdonald. This Freeholder, 1983 (Succe in 1846 by Hon J. Sandheld Maydonald. This journal, up to the time of that gentleman's death, continued to be his political organ. It has survived the varying fortunes which thirty-three years of continuous publication invariably bring to country journals, and under the able management of its founder, and, since his death, of his son, Mr. H. Sandheld Maydonald, we find the Freeholder at the present time enjoying a wide and profitable influence.

The third paper here established was the Constitutional, and though the date of its first issue has sesaged the memories of the older inhabit-ants, we have facts which lead to the belief that it was not later than 1850. The originator of this paper was Wats a Little, now proprietor of the L'Orignal Advertiser. The Constitutional was published in the interest of the Conservative party, but in 1863 it expired, and Mr. Little transferred his talent to the press of L'Orignal. Soon after its demise, however, it was resuscitated under a new name, that of the Advertiser, under the nominal proprietorship of John McDonell, but after a further struggle of three years, it succumbed finally and permanently.

About 1860 the Economist, a Reform paper, was started by Wm. S.

Johnston, who had previously published the Iroquais Chief a short time, but finding that journal unprofitable, he removed to Cornwall. The but meting that journal unprofitable, he removed to Cornwall. The Ecomomati's success was not commensurate with its merits, however, and after a short struggle the ran of ill luck proved too strong for it, and its talented editor removed to Port Hope, where he purchased the Guide and continued its publication for several years, when he accepted a responsible position on the tilobe. This position he retained with more credit than profit up to the time of his death, about ten year-since, when Hon, George Brown bestowed a pension upon his family in consideration of the eminent services of their husband and father. In 1867 the Gazette was first issued in Convaul by George Daylor.

consideration of the eniment services of their husband and father, In 1867 the diazette was first issued in Cornwall by George Burlen, now one of the editors of the Ottawa Free Press. This journal was what the Cornwall people understand as "anti-Sandfield" in its politics, it, opposed the policy of Hon. J. S. Macdonald, who became arrayed about that time against the vast majority of the Reform party. Although the questions of "Reform" and "Conservation" for many years ceased to be recognized in Cornwall politics (the issues meantime being "Sandfield" and "anti-Sandfield"), still the tim-the was decidelly Reform in its leanings, in addition to the characteristic above mentioned. The latest and one of the best enquisitions to the press of Cornwall was the Reporter, organized August 1st, 1876, by the present editor and proprietor, Mr. R. W. Macfarlane. The Reporter was established, and has ever since been conducted, on the pronounced Conservative principle; and by utterly ignoring the factions into which the people of Cornwall were then divided, it has succeeded in organizing the Conservative party in that constituency from the demoralized condition into which to long prevalence of personal amenor had transformed it into a united party in that constituency from the demonstrated condition into which the long prevalence of personal rancour had transformed it into a united and sub-tantial political compact.

Many evidences exist that the inaction and conservations which for almost a century prevaled among the people of Cornwall has given place to a spirit of genuine ability and enterprise. They are becoming pluty alive to the advisability of securing the establishment of manufactures in their midst, as is fully attested by their having granted liberal bounses to seach of the cotor in unfacturing companies operating there, as well as to the Cornwall Woodlen Company. Another fact worthy of note, as tening to demonstrate the recent progress of the town is the as well as to the Cornwall Woollen Company. Another fact wortny or node, as tending to demonstrate the recent progress of the town, is that whereas the population, as per official census of 1874, was only 2.025, it has since reached within a trifle of 5,600. There is no apparent reason why this prosperity should not continue indefinitely, for in few towns of Canada are the advantages of railway and water communication, manufacturing facilities, and proximity to market, so liberally combined.

TOWNSHIP OF OSNABRUCK.

Osnabruck is the most westerly of the river front townships of Stormont County; is larger than any other in the county; is the most fertile, and incomparably the best and most westly township within the limits of the corporation named. Its boundaries are formed by Cornwall Township on the east, Einch on the north, Williamsburg on the west, and the St. Lawrence River on the south.

Prior to the location here of the U. E. Loyalists, the "untutored savage" held complete sway over the west and swamps of Osnabruck, where, up to the time of the indux of emigration, no civilized being had as yet formed a residence. The Loyalists took up their abode here in 1784, in manner and method such as is more fully described in our sketch of the Early Settlement of the Counties. The greater number of them were of German origin and many of German birth, as will more fully appear from a perusal of their names. Such of them as were old enough had borne arms on the side of the British in the War of the Revolution, and for so doing had their property in the "Molasek Vale" confiscated by the victorious Americaus, and were themselves obliged to take their leave of a nation which they had exhausted every effort to keep in bondage. Without criticising the motivos and acts which resulted in their emigration to these shores, we will attempt a recital of such facts connected with their early settlement and residence here as the dearn of memorands allowed ur to collect, which will prove of interest to those who now think of the pioneers only as their departed ancestors.

Along the river front all the lots were located, and the same may be said of the entire southern half of the township. Among those who subsequently became more prominent in the community, and who came in at the first inception of the colony, were the Rosses, Aults, Statas, Shavers, Reddicks, Bakers, Worsis, Poopats, Wearts, Warkells, Merckleys, Beckstads, and many others; but as there were numerous representatives of each family named, and it is impossible to trace their representatives or each family named, and it is impossible to trace their individual connection with the history of the township, we refrain from an attempt to record their several Christian names, but state the surmanes a sufficient for the general purposes of this sketch. In the vicinity of Lumenburg, the original settlement was formed by Roger Wood ± Lot S, Con. 3—Samuel Hough, Henry Bush, John Brudshaw, Fred Poapst, and several of the Shavers—which latter name figures in the soft-price of a first state of the Shavers—which latter name figures in the early history of all the river townships to such an extent as to warrant the belief that this entire branch of the human race had settled at the date mentioned in the Eastern District. Another German family who located in this vicinity were the Ruports—Peter, Path John, Conrad, and Adam, the names of the first two being a free example of a distinction without a difference. Although the great being a fair example of a distinction without a difference. Although the greater part if not the whole of the township was granted out as "U.E. rights," yet the fact of the settler on each lot in the front of the town-ship having drawn as part of his right two lots toward the rear, would lead to the belief that the mere remote portions were not settled up as early as the part near the river.

When the Loyalists arrived they were encountered by a full measure of the hardships and inconveniences incident to a life in the wilderness, upon which, previous to their arrival, even the shadow of the "coming event" had not yet fallen; when there was an utter absence of any of the comforts of a home, excepting only such as they brought with them, for tens of miles on either side; when, by they brought with them, for tens of miles on either side; when, by contract with the smiling homesteads which they had left behind them in the Valley of the Mohawk, the prospect which presented itself to their vees and minds must perforce have been one of well night impensivable gloom. The Loyalists, however, displayed the same degree of plack and perseverance in this new capacity as had characterized their military record while fighting the battles of the Crown; and so far from being appalled by the aspect of affairs which greeted them, they set energetically and cheerfully to work to better their condition, and with such good success that the forcet soon discarded its air of oppressive solitude for that of a binay and happy community of pioneers.

The path which the Lovalists had chosen was by no means an easy.

The path which the Loyalists had chosen was by no means an easy one to tread, however, for to add to the natural drawbacks of the situation, they lacked to a painful degree the cash which is able to purchase all conforts, having been reduced to a state of abject poverty by their political banishment from across the border. The British Govtheir political banishment from across the border. The British Government, whom they had succoured in its need, did not desert them in their extremity, but supplied them with such provisions as they required until they were enabled to wring a sustenance from the soil. The Government stores were kept at Cornwall, and served outquarterly to the active, who exceeds The Government stores were kept at Cornwall, and served out quarterly to the settlers, who experienced in some cases the greatest difficulty in transporting them to their homes, as in those early days highways had only an ideal existence; and it being impossible to drive oxen through the forest except at favoured seasons of the year, the pioneers were obliged in many cases to substitute themselves for beasts of burden, and bring in supplies upon their backs. To supply the place of grist mills, the Government furnished portable handmills in numbers sufficient to meet the demands of the settlers, but these were not regarded with much layour, and soom fell into disuse, as the pioneers preferred going to the Gedars, in Sculanges Co., Quebec, on the east, and to Kingston on the west, to have their grain ground; but this condition of things bastened the construction of permanent mills within easier distances, the first of which was cretered on the river bank in Mathda, toward the immediate close of the last century.

For many years there were no considerable acquisitions to the population of Osnabruck. With the passage of each succeeding year the pioneers gathered more and t = of the comforts of domestic hife around them, and the new century dawned upon a happy and prosperous colony along the north bank of the St. Lawrence generally, and in Onadosch in variously. and in Osnabruck in particular.

The first advance of commerce into their midst was heralded by The first advance of commerce into their midst was heralded by the opening of a store on the River Road, just east of the Dundas County boundary, in 1787. The proprietor of this store was Richard Loucks, who figured conspicuously among the U. E.'s during the period of which we write; and among the other "first families" of the township, hesides those before mentioned, were the Hooples or Hooppoles, as they were called by some, the Morgans, Kintners, Waldsoff, and Jagorda.

According to the testimony of one of the oldest residents of the According to me reasoning or one or the outest residents of the township, the first marriage which took place in Osmobruek was between John Hoople and Eleanor Kintner, the excensiony being per-formed under the boughs of an old oda, standing close to the river's edge on Lot 11, now owned by Mr. Cyril Archibald; but the date when this interesting event took place, as well as the name of the officiating elergyman, was not within the recollection of our informant.

Not to dwell too minurely upon the incidents of the succeeding decades in this township, it will suffice to say, that with the advance of years the settlement advance I in all things tending to its material thrift and social advantage. There was little need of law courts, so few were the differences arising between the people, but such need as existed was supplied by the administration of martial law until the machinery of government was sufficiently perfected to admit of the establishment of Common Law Courts. Municipal government was conducted by means of Wardens and other officers elected at the annual "two meetings," no records of which are extant, except in disconnected links in a few townships of these counties. Nextsoron is located near the north-cast corner of the township, and is second in commercial importance. Its population is about 400, and it forms the centre of a large country trade.

Viewed from a variety of standpoints, the Township of Osnabruck is justly entitled to a place in the vanguard of Eastern Ontario townships, for whether considered as an agricultural district, viewed in the light of its advanced improvements, or measured by the number and extent of its villages, it stands unexcelled in the united counties.

FINCH AND ROXBOROUGH.

These two townships constitute the northern half of Stormont County, the first named lying to the north of Osnabruck, and the latter to the east of the first and north of Cornwall Township. Their western boundary is formed by the Township of Winchester, in Dundas County; on the north they are berdered by a portion of Russell and the whole of Cambridge Townships, in Russell County, and a portion of Plantagenet, in Prescott County; while on the east the limit is formed by the Township of Kenyon, in Glengarry County. The topographical features of Finch and Roxborough partake of the generally level nature characteristic of Eastern Ontario; but they are not absolutely free from slight hills or semi-impenetrable swamps, Roxborough being specially noted for the prevalence of the latter feature.

The earliest settlers of Finch located in the first decade of the lutely free from single funis or semi-imperience of the latter feature.

The earliest settlers of Finch located in the first decade of the present century, though there are none now living who recedled either the exact dates or the particular order of their location; but certain it is that Alexander Memilian had settled on Lot 16, Concession 2, as early as 1805, for in that year his daughter Harriet was born, this being the first birth in the township; and that there were then but few settlers in the township is reasonably certain, from the fact that they all attended the christening ceremony of this new acquisition to the population. The minister who performed this interesting rite was Rev. Mr. Weagant, of the Episcopal Church of Williamsburg.

Following the original settlers were Hugh and John McMillan, Lachlin McLean, John, Donald, and Allen Cameron, and Donald McMillan, all of whom located along near the southern border about the year 1814, and two years later Wm. Wiseman located Lot 22, Concession 2. Mr. Wiseman is now 100 years of age, having been military post to which his father as a member of a Seotch regiment had been assigned. He is one of a family of severetee, sixteen of whom were sons, and is but displaying the longevity inherited from his mother, who died at the age of 106 years.

The more remote portions of Finch were not so early settled, yet there is little of it which can be described as new country, as the balance of the township followed quite closely in the wake of the southern concessions, and now it is well and quite densely settled except where the nature of the surface renders it uninhabitable, which southern concessions, and now it is went and influencessy setting except where the nature of the surface renders it unimbabitable, which is the case with a considerable area in the extreme northern part.

The phoneers of Boxborough threaded their way into their new homes in the wilderness about the same time as their fellows in toil of Finch. Though there is no data from which we can determine the exact order of their location, or even the positive date of the original location in the township, it will serve the purposes of this aketch to state that in 1810 there were already a number of Seath enigrants established in their new homes in Roxborough. Among them were John Montgomery, Donald Cameron, Duncan Cummings, 4kev. McDonald, Donald McFee, Alex. McIntosh, and John Chisbolm, who had located near the south-east corner of the township. In 1819 Philip Helmer took up Lot A, Concession 1, and soon thereafter Donald McIntosh and Donald McBain sottled in the same quarter. Up to this time there appears to have been no settlement in any part of the town ship, and from the time mentioned until after the War of 1812 there was a temperary cessation of new locations; but after that straigle had been concluded the influx became greater than ever, and resulted in the speedy location of the greater portion of the arable lands in the township. township.

the apoedy location of the greater portion of the arable lands in the township.

The first of the settlers to be removed by the hand of death was John Montgomery before mentioned (whose son John was the first white child born in Ro-kborough), the circumstances of his death being briefly these. While at Martintown in Glengarry one day, he attempted, in company with some others, to apprehend an Italian who had just committed a felony, and was by him stabled so that he died immediately; and the execution of the Italian at Cornwall formed the last link of a chain of events each of which was the initiative of its kind the first death of a Boxborough man, the first number, and the first execution occurring in the Eastern District.

There are no villages of any considerable importance in either of these townships, but of such as there are, Avonmore and Moore Carke—the former with 100 and the latter with about 70 inhabitants are the principal in Roxborough; while in Finch, South Frenn, near the south-east corner of the township, is a handet of some interest, with about 150 inhabitants, having large mills, several stores, shops, and a fine hotel. Brewerk, about six miles farther north, is evidently one of the 'has beens,' thought its present status in not imposing; and Cavarra, near the north centre, on the banks of the Nation, is a new, enterprising, and thriving place of about 300 inhabitants, and the usual number of stores, shops, hotels, &c.

Those townships are peopled by a class of industrious, conservative farmers, whose circumstances, if affluent, find little diaplay in exterior adornments, but who are evidently content to 'run the same race that their fathers have run,' without resorting to the vanity of parading their personal virtues and physical resources to the gaze of a not too approachive public.

TOWNSHIP OF WILLIAMSBURG.

Williamsburg occupies a position in the south-east quarter of the County of Dundas, it being the most easterly of the river range of townships in this county. Its eastern boundary is formed by the Township of Osnabruck, in Stormont County; Winchester Township borders it on the north, Matilda on the west, and the River St. Lawrence on the south. In manner and form the early settlement of Williamsburg was as nearly identical with that of Osnabruck as the slight difference in location permitted. It was colonized by people of the same lineage, identical interests, and similar political affiliations and scattiments, by those by whom Osnabruck was peopled. The vicinsitudes and lardships which the pioneers of Williamsburg underwent were akin to those suffered by their brethren to the east of them; their struggle with poverty just as severe; their pluck in overcoming the difficulties of their situation fully as well displayed; and their final conquest of adverse circumstances quite as decisive.

conquest of adverse circumstances quite as decisive.

Accordingly a journey into the minutize of incidents attending the location of the settlers in this township would appear superfluous, as it certainly is impracticable, from the non-existence of authentic data on which to found such a minute description. We would, however, here acknowledge our indebtedness for information on many points of interest, not only in connection with this township but regarding the County of Dundas generally, to the work published in 1861 by Mr. James Croil, entitled "Dundas—a Sketch of Canadian History."

Among the work required existing in Williamshuss of Like

James Croil, entitled "Dundas—a Sketch of Canadian History."

Among the most prominent settlers in Williamshurg were John and Jerona Crysler, brothers, the former being the father of Col. John C. and the grandfather of Mr. John P. Crysler, both of whom have since taken so active parts in the military and political affairs of the county. The farms settled by these gentlemen were Lots 11 and 12, in the lat Concession. The Hickeys have also become equally numerous and respected, wherefore we present elsewhere the portrait and biography of a representative of that family. The Roses, Casselmans, Merckleys, Loncks, Boucks, and others of perhaps equal prominence, were identified with the early settlement of the township, and have each left behind them a progeny which has since assumed serious numerical proportions. serious numerical proportions.

But Williamsburg is chiefly noted for having had the famous battle of Crysler's Farm fought within its limits in 1813, and for the fact of the pioneer Protestant thurch of Canada having been here erected. The first mentioned of those events is described in our Military History, and to the latter we devote some space at this juncture. The church referred to was built by the Lutherans of Williamsburg, having been begun in 17-9, five years after their settlement in the township. The location of this temple of worship was upon the exact site at present occupied by the Bjiscopal Clurch on the river front. It was in the fall of the year mentioned that the work was begun, but after the frame had been made the approach of winter rendered a suspension of operations necessary, and it was not until the spring of 1790 that the frame was ruised and the eslikee carried forward to completion. An invitation was then extended to Rev. Samuel Schwerlifeger, residing near Albany, N.Y., to take charge of the spiritual affairs of the community. Mr. Schwerlifeger arrived at the scene of his future labours in June, 1790, and soon thereafter dedicated to the service of the Deity the first Protestant church in Canada from "broad Atlantic's foamy wave to Pacific's limpid sea." The name by him conferred upon it was "Zion's Church," in the church books it was called the German Protestant Church, and the English called it the Dutch Church. In 1811 the then officiating chergyman, Mr. Weggant, tiring of the inadequate support extended to him, secretly joined the Episcopal Church, was ordained as a Rector therein, and thereafter held possession of the Latheran Church for the use and benefit of the Episcopal Solty.

There has been no feature in the development of Williamsburg church property has ever since romained under the control of the Episcopal body.

There has been no feature in the development of Williamsburg worthy of special mention the counterpart of which could not be seen in Osandruck; and as the progress of the latter named township is clsewhere traced as fully as the character of this work will permit, the reader may safely accept that as the index to Williamsburg's material advancement. There is considerable of historic interest which clusters around the old handlet of Maatarows, however, a brief reference to which will be in order. This was the judicial as well as commerical headquarters of the territory now comprising the County Dundas. Before the establishment of civil courts the Common Law was administered in martial form by the Captain in command, and in the locality manel Capt. Duncan a Loyalist, was the personage on whom this duty devolved, but the extent of his jurisdiction cannot be accurately described, as none appear to be informed upon this point. His headquarters, Mariatown, received its name from him in honour of his headquarters, Mariatown, received its name from him in honour of his headquarters, Mariatown, received its name from him in honour of his headquarters, Mariatown, received its name from him in honour of his headquarters, and before the inception of that village Mariatown was been as the "metropolis" of Dundas County; but its commercial life was paralysed by the advent of its rival in trade, and now the only monuments of its past greatness are a dozen or more neat dwellings.

There are few villages of any importance in the township, but the chief of such as there are is Nourn Williamsnots, or Bell's Corners, about six miles north of Morrisburg, which boasts of half a dozen stores, hotels, three churches, and other commercial and mechanical institutions belifting a village of 200 inhabitants. The township generally is noted for the comparatively large area of arable band within institutions belifting a village of 200 inhabitants. The township

VILLAGE OF MORRISBURG.

This, the principal village of Dundas County in extent as well as in This, the principal village of Dundas County in extent as well as in commercial importance, owes its birth to the construction of the St. Lawrence Canals, and especially to the Morrisburg or Rapid du Plat Canal, at the foot of which water-way the village is located. The geographical location of Morrisburg is on the north bank of the St. Lawrence River, about two miles east of the Matilita and Williamsburg town line, at a point 28 miles above Cornwall, the seat of Municipal Government, and 95 miles above Montreal. Its history, up to the time of its incorporation as a separate nunicipality, is identical with that of the Township of Williamsburg, of which it originally formed a part.

It will be sufficient, then, for the purposes of the present sketch, to refer very generally to the personnel of the pioneers of this locality, and the incidents of its early settlement. In fact, this brevity of detail is reduced to a necessity by the non-existence of any authentic data bearing upon the subject, the earlier residents having all passed away, and with them the recollections of such facts as we should desire to present as illustrating the daily life of the pioneers. Being thus left without a record of the facts, we do not purpose resorting to theories to supply their places, but with the mention of the names of those who originally located near the site of the pre-sent village, we will proceed to discuss the more recent events of the community, without the attempt to resurrect from the past century material which would invite the inaccuracies which would certainly creep into a record brought from such a source. Among those who first located here were the grandfather of the late Isaae N. Rose, whose Christian name we did not learn, some of the numerous Merckleys, and the Casselmans.

The village was not thought of until the construction of the canals was mooted, as before stated, prior to which date considerable commercial importance had attached to Mariatown, a short distance up the river from Morrisburg, a description of which hamlet appears in our sketch of Williamsburg. Passing by in silence the period intervening between the first settlement of the U. E.'s at this point and the time when the first signs of a future village were recognized as existing here, we would state that the absence of written memoranda appears to have left even the "oldest inhabitant" in doubt as to the exact date when such signs were first observed; but certain it is that the nucleus of the present town had not been formed in 1838, when the American army marched down the shore of the St. Lawrence to Crysler's Farm. Accepting the date of the establishment of the pioneer store as the birthday of the village will still further defer that period to 1840, or as nearly thereabouts as the memory of the pioneer store as the birthday of the village will still further defer that period to 1840, or as nearly thereabouts as the memory of the pioneer store as the birthday of the village will still further defe became one of the most wealthy and prominent citizens of the place. The trade which was attracted by the building of the Rapid du Plat Canal created a demand for more mercantile establishments, and here, as in all other places, there was no dearth of mon willing to devote themselves to the handling of the rule and sugar scoop in preference to the pick and shovel; consequently the growth of the place kept pace with the demands of trade, which gathered force and volume with each additional stride, until Morrisburg became the acknowledged centre of Dundas vounty commerce, and as such assumed the appearance and attributes of a thriving village. During the decade between 1850 and 1890 its growth was steady and rapid; the construction of the Grand Trunk Railway past its back door in 1855 gave an additional impetus to its advancement; and in 1880 it had attained dimensions which warranted its incorporation as a village.

The independent organization of Morrisburg having been thus effected, the pioneer council of the village was elected in 1861, and consisted of the following named gentlemen ——James H. Casedman, Isaac N. Rose, James W. Millar, Fred. Braditeld, and Alexander G. Macdonell. The latter named of these gentlemen was elected to the Reveaking at the first meeting, held January 21st, 1861. The Clerk appointed at this meeting was Mr. A. C. Hartwell.

During the succeeding fifteen, years, or up to and during 1876, appointed at this meeting was Mr. A. C. Hartwell.

During the succeeding fifteen years, or up to and during 1876, Mr. Macdonell was continued in the incumbency of the Reeveship by annual re-election, giving place in 1877 to Dr. T. F. Chamberlain, who has since retained the office. For the current year the Council is thus constituted:—Reec, T. F. Chamberlain, M.D.; Councillors, John H.
Meikle, Alonzo Dain, George Dillen, and John Fetterly. The number cipal officials are: Clerk, W. H. Garvey; Assessor, Wim. A. Nash; Treasuree, Thomas McDonald; Auditors, Irwin Stewart and William Garvey.

The development of Morrisburg has been of that steady and substantial character which bespeaks a foundation laid upon genuine capital; its advancement, while never outstripping its need hes yet never fallen in rear of its requirements; with each forwar 'trile it has attracted trade from a wider circle, which in turn has continued to mas actractes trans from a water errete, which in turn has cell-diment to its greater commercial importance; and as a result we fine, Morrisburg a substantial go-ahead village of 2,500 inhabitants, enjoying the full manure of prosperity which usually springs from such advantages as those enumerated.

There are no manufactories here which call for special mention; but the next most potent instrument of commercial progress as well as of social enlightenment, the Press, is represented by two very creditable journals. The older of those is the Conrier, established in 1882 by Hugh C. Kennedy, its present proprietor, as an independent political paper. It retained its independent character till the approach of the general elections of 1874, when it came out as a full flesiged Conservative organ. The Conrier is on 8-page quarto, published each Friday, is fully up to the requirements of the times, and enjoys a large circulation and leading influence. The more recently established paper is the Dandar Control Herald and 8t. Leverence Reporter, first issued in March, 1874, by Arthur Brown, by whom it has been since transferred to Miles Brown, the present editor and proprietor. The Herald is Liberal in its political learnings, and is well patronized by the public, on whom its influence is extensive and extending.

Prior to the mubilication of the Conrier, there was a paper called the There are no manufactories here which call for special mention ; but

Prior to the publication of the Conrier, there was a paper called the Bunner, which haited from this village though it was printed in Pressort. The late James Holden was the publisher of the Bunner, the publication of which was discontinued some time before the establishment of the Courier, lishment of the Courier.

The schools of Morrisburg are referred to in another part of this work. Its charches are of a good order, including a Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Latheran, Presbyterian, and Methodiat. The beauting and elegance of the private residences of this village, however, form its chief attraction to the visitor; and the facts will fully warrant the statement, that in no other village of similar-rise in Canada may be found so large a number of houses in which the same high degree of wealth and taste are displayed; and if, as other appearances would indicate, this feature may be taken as an index to the enterprise and wealth of the village, Morrisburg may justly claim a place among the most favoured villages in this respect; while its delightful location on the St. Lawrence, and the excellent quality of the adjoining country, emphatically stamp it as one of the most desirable places of residence in Ontario.

TOWNSHIP OF MATILDA.

Matilda is situated next west of Williamsburg, along the River St. Lawrence, thus forming the most south-westerly township of the United Counties of Stormont, Dandas, and Glengary. Its western boundary is formed by the Township of Edwardsburg in Grenville County, and the Township of Mountain borders it on the north. The name of Matilda was evidently conferred upon this township in honour of the Princess Charlotte Augusta Matilda, eldest daughter of Geo. III., after whom also Charlotte Augusta Maribla, eldest daughter of Geo. HL, after whom also Charlottenburg in Glengarry was named.

Topographically described, Matibla is generally level, but this general character of the surface is varied in places by an elevation almost amounting to a hill, and anon by a depression into a verirable swamp; but the proportionate prevalence of the latter is small, and the surface is generally not unsuited to farming operations, while the quality of the soil is above the average townships of Estern Ontario. Like all the St. Lawrence townships, Matibla was colonized by U. E. Lovaliste; those settling here having come from the Valley of the Mohawk, and among them we may mention the Carimans, more fully referred to in our-sketch of Iroquio's), Jacob Coons, Capt, Ault, the Donas, Broises, Shavers—the latter in considerable and uncertain numbers. #### VILLAGE OF IROQUOIS.

This is the most ancient village, as regards the date of its incorporation, in the united counties, and like many of the towns along the St. Lawrence, its existence may be fairly attributed to the commercial impetus imparted to that region by the construction of the canals, which there form such important links in the chain of Canada's magnificent water stretches. Proquois is located on the bank of the river named, eight miles west of Morrisburg and 103 unless above Montreal, where the St. Lawrence sweeps around Point Iroquois, and forms a beautiful bay directly in front of the village.

The original settlers on the present site of this village (which was taken from the Township of Matibla by the terms of its incorporation were Michael Carman and his son of the same name, who located Let 25; Capt. Martin Walter, on Let 24; Jacob Coons, on Let 25; Capt. Anti and Peter Brouse, one or both of whom settled on Lot 22. The parties named were all V. E. Loyalists; their bocation here occurred in 1784. The Carmans maned were the ancestors of the respected family of the same name who now reside there; Capt. Walter was a brother-in-haw of the elder Carman, and Mr. Brouse as as the father of Gieo. Brouse, who afterward achieved prominence as the piencer store-keeper of the village, as well as the representative in Farliament of Dundas County for several years.

The Point Iroquois Canal leaves the river at this point, and extends 74 miles up along the bank of the river. The building of this canal was commenced in 1842 and completed in 1847, between which dates was commenced in 1842 and completed in 1847, between which dates the village enjoyed the greater part of its growth. Previous to the former date, however, there was the nucleus of a village at this point, where Dan. Carman had a small wharf from which he supplied atenmers with wood, in addition to the ordinary purposes to which it was put. The first store was opened here by George Brouse, before referred to, in 1804, as nearly as the "oldest inhabitant" can fix the date. Even before the date mentioned, a settler named Krause had built a small grist mill on the "point" just below the village. It was of a pseudiar pattern, the motive power being supplied by a water wheel fastemed upon the end of a shaft which extended out into the current of the river, the current contribution the investigation of the river.

After the commencement of canal construction here the growth of the place was quite rapid, and no seoner had the influence of canal work been withdrawn, than its counterpart was furnished by the building of the Grand Trunk Railroad through the village; while building of the Grand Trunk Raitrond through the village; while tending more materially to its development than perhaps either of the above causes, was the fact of there being no other trade centre nearer than Morrisburg on the east or Edwardsburg on the wast, and the tendency of trade to find the most convenient outlet. The outlet which was thus established for the trade of Mathia became more and more important with each succeeding year, and in 1-57 Irequios had assumed proportions which suggested the advisability of embarking in independent numicipal government. Consequently, in 1877 the village was incorporated, and immediately thereafter—in August of that eage—the first numicinal Council of Irequios was elected, being more important with each succeeding year, and in 1-3-1 Projucia had assumed proportions which suggested the advisability of embarking in independent municipal government. Consequently, in 1857 the village was incorporated, and innueshately thereafter—in August of that year—the first municipal Council of Iroquois was elected, being composed of the following mamed gentlemen:—eleo, Bromes, Philip Carman, John S. Insquois deserves the name of the "Limestone Village," from the fact that the greater number of the buildings are constructed of that material. The general appearance of the village is more than usually neat and attractive; its business blocks' are handsome, though not gaudy; its residences are spacious, and finished in a style which betokens a taste for sombined beauty and comfort; its churches are numerous and of a uniformly excellent order; its railway and navigation facilities are unexcelled; the adjacent district is of the highest agricultural quality; and these and other features contribute to the perfectly satisfactory status of this exceedingly pleasant little village of 2,000 inhabitants on the bank of the 8t. #### MOUNTAIN AND WINCHESTER

These are the two most northerly townships of Dandas County, torming the entire northern range or tier, and he, the former to the west of the latter named. The name of "Mountain" was conferred upon the township wearing it in honour of Rev. Dr. Mountain, the first Protestant Bishop of Canada; and Winchester received its cognomen after the Earl of that name, the predecessor in the office of Colonial Secretary of Lord Dundas, after whom the county was named.

Like all the surrounding country, these townships are generally level, but the surface in places assumes a gently undulating character, while in other it sinks to a nositive swann; but the concept character.

By a provision of the British Government, all children of U. E. Loyalists who had borne arms during the Revolution became entitled to 200 acres on coming of age, and the greater portion of the two townships now referred to were thus drawn as a bounty to the children of the Lowaline and the greater portion of the two

The documents by which the lots were set aside to the different owners were called "U. E. Rights," and these soon became a current article of eveluage and barter among the pe ple ; for the current price of Lud being very low, they possessed little intrinsic value as compared with the value of such documents at the present day; still, they were cagerly hought up by speculators, and consequently the greater part of the land in these townships was settled upon by others then the actional corner. greater part of the land in than the original owners.

The date of the first settlement in Winchester does not reach back more than sixty years, the location of the pioneers having been along the banks of the Nation River, near the south border of the township. Among the first to locate here were Thomas Cross, Robert Ball, John Helmer, and Louis and James Hutt. Some years later Edward and George Fox, the Bakers and Summers, located further west on the Nation, and it was not until about 1835 that the vicinity of West Winchester received its first settlers. Chesterville, in this township, had a mill as early as 1835, it having been built by one Armstrong, and there was even at that early day the nucleus of a village formed at that place.

In Mountain the first actual settlers were probably David Brown, In Mountain the first actual setHers were probably David Brown, Jas. Jackson. Daniel Garnsey, and his son Samuel, who were located on the bank of the Nation when the MeIntyres—John, MeIcelin, Donald, and their father, whose name we did not learn—came to the township in 1849; then came John Hyndman, who purchased a squatter's right of one Hannawell in 1826, and he was soon followed by Win, Hay, Frank Stewart, Win, Brown, and Jacob Loucks, all tof whom formed whom what was for many years thereafter known as the "old settlement," Frank Stewart, Win. Brown, and Jacob Loucks, all of whom formed what was for many years thereafter knean as the "old settlement," along the banks of the Nation. Farther back and toward the west border Peter Smith and Joseph Hyndman had located as entity as 1×20, after which George Fox, James Wickwire, Robert Roe, and one Allen settled along the 6th and 7th Concessions; and thereafter the influx of settlers was as rapid and steady as to reader a recital of the order of their incoming quite out of the question.

The circumstances attending the early life of these settlers in their The circumstances attending the early life of these settlers in their new location, while scarcely as savere as the original Loyalists were subjected to, were nevertheless of a very trying character, and to oversome them called into regunstion that in most carnest and protracted efforts. It was many years before they were favoured with highways, and in this interval they were virtually imprisoned in their homes during the spring, summer, and fall, but in the winter they maintained communication with Mariatown and Johnstown—their bases of supplies—over the frozen ground, the frost rendering the swamps fairly passable.

communication with Mariatown and Johnstown—their bases of supplies—over the frozen ground, the first rendering the swamps fairly passable. Their sole source of revenue during their first residence in the woods was the sale of sait and potash, except occasional sales of superior timber, which alone of the products of the forsat found ready purchasers, and for that commodity even the prices offered would not now be considered tempting. But the untiring industry and prudent economy of the Mountain and Winchester men resulted as it usually does where judiciously applied, and with each successing year the glow of success cheered them more and more, until they equalled, then rivalled, then eclipsed, the townships further south in many respects, which even their remoteness from railway and navigation facilities could not retard. They are now favoured with necessary properous villages within their own borders, the principal of which is Wissimorth from Morrisburg, and is in all respects a village to be proud of. The first sattler upon its site was Ben Bates, who located there about 18:36, and from whom the village took the name of Bates' Corrers, by which it is still known to many. A store was soon after opened by a black-mith named Miller: then Wm. Bow, the present Postmater, opened another store, and the post office was established in 1855. The elife feature of the village is the large manufacturing business carried on, the most important concern of the kind being that of M. F. #### COUNTY OF GLENGARRY.

Glengarry is the most easterly county of Ontario, as well as of the union of counties concerning which this work is published. It was one of the original counties into which the district of Lunenburg was one of the original countios into which the district of Lunenburg was divided in 1792, by proclamation of Lord Dorehester, then officiating as to-cernor of Canada. It included within its original lumits the greater part of the territory at present constituting the County of Prescott, but for several generations its metos and bounds have been located as we find them at the present time. On the east it is bordered by the County of Vaudrouil, both in the Province of Quebec; on the north it is bounded by the County of County of Vaudrouil, both in the Province of Quebec; on the north it is bounded by the County of Prescott; its western limit is founded by the County of Stormont, and the noble St. Lawrence washes its southern shores. Its geographical shape is more nearly that of a square than any other mathematical figure, but the square which would otherwise be formed is prevented by its eastern boundary, which runs north 24 west until it reaches a point about ten miles from the St. Lawrence, when it is prevented by its eastern boundary, which runs north 24 west until it reaches a point about ten miles from the St. Lawrence, when it turns at an obtuse angle, and runs directly north, continuing beyond the limits of this county to the Ottawa River, and forming the boun-dary between the two Provinces along its entire length. The County of Glengarry is comprised of the four Townships of Charlottenburg, Lancaster, Lo. hiel, and Kenyon, which will be referred to separately but briefly in regard to their original colonization and present condition.

CHARLOTTENBURG is the most westerly of the two front or river CHRECTERISTS is the most westerly of the two front or river townships, and is also the largest in the county in point of territorial extent. Its surface is generally level, but in places this is relieved by a gentle undulation, and in other parts, as along the river front, there is a decided tendency to swamp. The general character of the soil may be described as a good middling, for though there are large areas of excessively stony surface besides the swamp referred to, there are equally large portions, as that clong the Rivière aux Raisin, where the quality of the soil is of the highest order known to husbandry.

the quality of the soil is of the highest order known to husbandry. The first settlement of Charlottenburg was formed by U. E. Loyalists, who came to this township in 1784, they having formed a portion of the party who trusted their destinies in the hands of the British Government, acting through Sir John Johnston, in the year named. Among these were the Macdonells, mentioned in our Political History, from whom have sprung a race equally numerous and influential. There were also several families of McLennans, Charles Rose, John Haw Bani Ghasford and others. But it was not until 1784 that the There were also several families of McLennans, Charles Rose, John Hay, Benj. Glassford, and others. But it was not until 1786 that the settlement of the township became general, when a large party of Highlani Scotch emigrants located here. Owing partially to the great number who came in a that time, and partially to the similarity in the names of many of them, it would be impossible to trace, after the lapse of a century, the various incidents of their early residence here, or the commention with ories incidents sustained by narricular parties. impase of a century, the various mederats of their early residence here, or the connection with given incidents austained by particular parties. But for the purpose of lending a historical aspect to this aketch, we would name as among the pioneers of Charlottenburg the Grants, McLeonds, McVirumons, McInto-lea, McMillans, McDonalds and McGregors, in such numbers that an attempt to recite the Christian names, or even the number of families of each of these names, must necessarily be founded on mere conjecture.

The pioneers were not by any means well calculated to prove successful in a stringle with the forest such as they were called upon to maintain, for agriculture was an art almost unknown to many of them, coming as they did from those parts of Sectland where the proportion of arable land was small, and the people resorted to the skilled trades for a means of living. Netwithstanding these difficulties, however, they applied themselves with commendable zeal to the clearing of the forest, and soon succeeded in securing the comforts if not the huxuries of life as the fruit of their toil. With each succeeding generation, however, the science of agriculture has found greater favour than with the last, and to-day the township furnishes some as good specimens of successful agriculture as may be found within the countries.

There are several villages and hamlets in this township, some of them almost as old as the settlement of the county. Such is St. RAPHALE, a quaint old hamlet situated on the old Military Road, about the centre of the township from south to north, and east of the centre in a representation. Here the pioneer church of the county was creeted in 1720, under the charge of Bishop Macdonald, under whose spiritual patronage the Cathodic portion of the population originally settled in Glengarry. There are few attractions there now except a church, and such shops and stores as are required by the surrounding commonity.

Matterview is located along the banks of the Rivière aux Raisin near the western limit of the township, and is a village of considerable importance, containing about four hundred inhabitants, a dozen store, several hotels, and other attractions of less moment.

WILLIAMSTOWN, south-reast of the courte of the township, on the Rivière aux Raisin, is of about the same stamp as Martintown, but contains, in addition to other features of interest, a High School, which enjoys a good reputation as an institution of learning.

the fact that the French, who extended their settlements up to its eastern limits, considered it too swampy for habitation.

This township received few if any of the U. E.'s as settlers, but was colonized almost exclusively by Highland Scotch immigrants, among whom were several each of the McMillans, McLondals, Macdonells, McLennans, Macdongalls, McKays, and others whose identity with the pioneers has been forgotten by the lapse of almost a century since their settlement. With commendable industry those Scotch weavers, shoemakers, tailors, and shepherds devoted themselves to the establishment of homes in the Camahan forest, and such was the success attending their efforts, that Laucaster was transformed from the state which gave it the name of the 'sunken township' to one of agricultural excellence fully equal to that of any in the county. There are no villages of considerable size in the township, but the many neat handets, and the thrifty appearance of the homesteeds, denote that the people of Lancaster are now onjoying the fruits of the toil expended by their ancestors in reclaiming this territory from its primeval state of forest and awamp.

Locutte is the most north-easterly township of Glengarry, and, like the others, is indebted for its first settlement to the emigrants who came out from the Highlands in 1786 and 1788, in numbers sufficient to make the settlement quite general. For this reason, among others, no record of the precedence of their respective locations has been preserved, nor in fact could we gather any information bearing thereon which would be of special interest. About thirty families settled at the same time in the vicinity of Lot 26, Con. 6, and among them were Rodk, and Alex. McLead, John Dewar, John McPhee, Don. and Arch. McGillivray. Later on there were fresh acquisitions to the population who came from Scotland direct, among whom were the McArthurs, McCuaigs, Campbells, Cains, Frasers, and others whose names are perpetuated in their numerous doscendants who now reside in the township.

The general surface of Lochiel is a counterpart of the other town-

The general surface of Lochiel is a counterpart of the other townships heretofore described, the north-eastern portion being above the average as an agricultural district; and though there are few villages of much commercial import, the general aspect of the township is one of thrift earl prosperity.

The Township or Kennon lies to the north of Charlottenburg and west of Lochiel. Its settlement dates from a period contemporaneous with that of the other townships of tilengarry. The south-eastern portion was settled by numerous representatives of the clan McMillan, while the McGregor, McDonald, McLeod, McTavish, McRac, McDiarnid, McIntosh, McNaughton, McKay, McDongall, and other High-and as well as many Lowland families, were and are fully represented.

The surface of Kenyon partakes more generally of an undulating character than that of any other township in this part of Outario; still in no place us the variation so great as to form hills of inconvenient size, nor is the proportion of awanp as great in this township as is usual in the east of the Province. The population is more dense than usual in trural districts; the character of improvements fully up to the average; the quality of the land second to that of no township in the county; the people are industrious and thrifty; and all appearances point to the fact of this being a township where the toil of the pioneer and husbandman have been well and amp

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

Jacob F. PRINGE, Judge of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry, is the son of Lieut. James Pringle, of Her Majesty's 81st Regiment of Foot, which took part in the Napoleonic wars during the first decade of the present century, and after the overthrow of the Emperor of the French, was stationed at Valenciennes, France, where the subject of this sketch was born, 27th June, 1816. In the year following his father retired from the army on half-pay, and coming to Canada, settled in Cornwall. Here his son Jacob F. received his education at the Grammar School, within whose walls so many of Canada's prominent men have been educated, and in this town the Judge pursued the legal studies which resulted in his admission to the Bar in November, 1838.

Selecting as his permanent location the home of his childhood, he soon succeeded, by his untring zeal and high professional abilities, in establishing an extensive practice, which continued to increase until he relinquished it for the more dignified calling of an administrator of the law. In February, 1858, he received the appointment of Clerk of the Peace and County Attorney, a position which he continued to fill with great acceptance till his elevation to the Bench in November, 1866.

At the date mentioned, the judicial affairs of the counties were administered by Judge tice. S. Jarvis; but the advanced age of that grutheman, and the rapid increase in the volume of judicial business, demonstrated the necessity of appointing a Junior Judge, and it was to fill this newly created office that Judge Pringle was selected.

Bringing to bear upon his newly assumed duties the same degree of zeal, integrity, and ability that had characterized him as a barrister, Judge Pringle soon achieved a reputation as a jurist fully equal to that which he enjoyed while v.c the Bar.

The same causes which led to the appointment of a Junior Judge led also to his assumption of a greater amount of work than usually falls to the lot of one Judge, but it was performed in a manner both satisfactory to the people and creditable to himself. Owing to the death of Judge Jarvis in 1878, Judge Pringle was promoted to the vacant seat in June of the same year, thus discarding the prefix "junior" from his judicial title. Since then also he has discharged alone the judicial duties of the constitut, the amount of work being much greater than in some counties where two Judges consider themselves overworked. selves overworked.

JOHN SYLVESTER ROSS, M.P., of Iroquois, Dundas County, is grandson of Jacob Ross, a U. E. Loyalist, who piloted the party under the command of Sir John Johnston into Canada, previous to which, during the Revolution, he had held the position of chief of scouts in the British service, and also commanded a body of indians who espoused the cause of the Crown. Settling among the other Loyalists in Osnabruck, he devoted his time to failing, hunting, &c., where he was unrestricted in his love of adventure. He had but one son, Michael by name, who served with great credit in several engagements during the War of 1812, ending his life in Osnabruck, June, 1878, at the age of 89 years.

His son, John S. Ross, of whom we now write, was born on the family homestead in Osnabruck in 1821, and was educated at the District School and by a private tutor.

Soon after reaching man's estate he cut adrift from the paternal moorings, and established himself in a small store where the Village of Iroquois now stands, his being the second store started at that point. Ever since that time he has been most prominently identified with every scheme which has tended to the material advancement of that village, and to his liberality and enterprise many of the permanent advantages which have since accrued to Iroquois may be traced.

WILLIAM MACK, M.P.P., of Cornwall, is eminently a self-made man, and as such furnishes a fair example of the traits of character requisite for a man's clevation from comparative poverty and obscurity to a position of social, financial, and political influence and affluence. Like many of Canada's most estimable citizens, Mr. Mack claims as his birthplace the land of heather hills, he having been born in Lanarkshire in 1828, but while yet a child he came with his father's family to Huntingdon, Que. Here he remained till he attained his majority, and having meanwhile learned the millier's trade, he removed in 18-19 to Cornwall, where he assumed control of the flouring mill then in course of erection by John Harvey, of Toronto, but subsequently and more familiarly known as the "Hitchocck Mill." He was afterwards connected with the Elliott Mills in the same town in the capacity of manager, but in 18-61 he embarked in business on his own account as proprietor of the "Express Mills," which he still owns and controls.

capacity of manager, but in 1861 he embarked in business on his own account as proprietor of the "Express Mills," which he still owns and controls.

It is unnecessary to "point a moral" in this connection, for to all it must be apparent that a rise from the sphere of a journeyman miller to the proprietorship of the most extensive mills in Cornwall was not the result of accident, but of skilful, persevering, and frugal industry, coupled with liberal enterprise and exceptional business abilities. But Mr. Mack's services to the community are not to be adequately measured by the place and space which he occupie: in the commercial circle. His success in that aphere marked him as one eminently qualified for the control of public alfairs, and during each of the nine years last past he occupied a seat at the Council Board of his adopted town; and should a further comment appear necessary to prove the high degree of satisfaction his services in that capacity gave his constituents, it may be found in the fact that on each of those occasions he was elected by acclamation. During seven of these years he represented the town in the Counties Council, most of the time in the capacity of Reeve, and in 1878 was elected Warden of Stormont, Dundas, and cilengarry, his opponent being I. R. Ault, Reeve of Osnabruck, and one of the most popular men in the counties.

Mr. Mack's long career of unopposed elections to public offices (which was varied only by a contest for the Wardenship) culminated in his election by acclamation, in May last, to a seat in the Legislative Assembly of Ontario. In politics Mr. Mack has always been a Reformer, but his clear judgment and liberal sentiments have united in holling him aloof from sharing the partisan character which distinguishes certain members of all political parties, and to this non-partisan support of the Laberal party, as much perhaps as to his high intelligence and proverbial integrity, may his elevation to a seat in Parliament be attributed.

Sheriff McIntyre was bern in the town of Oban, Argyleshire, Scotland, in February, 1812, and was the only child of his parents. He received a preliminary education in his native parish, after which he took a medical course in the Glasgow University, and having graduated from that school of science, he omigrated to Canada in 1835, and located at Williamstown, Glengary County, as a practising physician, and in July, 1837, married Ann, daughter of Col. Hon. Alexander Fraser, of Expansibil Chimarers.

at Williamstown, Glengarry County, as a practising physician, and in July, 1837, married Ann, daughter of Col. Hon. Alexander Fraeer, of Fraserfield, Glengarry.

On the outbreak of the Rebellion the same year, he was placed on the staff of the 1st Glengarry Militia as Regimental Surgeon, and in this capacity was descending the 8t. Lawrence the following year on the steamer Henry Broughton, when, in company with several other militiamen, he was captured by the Rebels at Beauharnois, and confined in the house of the parish priest at that place, until released by the victorious Government troops two weeks later. He accompanied his regiment thence into the heart of the rebellious Province, and after the suppression of the insurrection resumed his practice in Williamstown, continuing on the staff of his regiment, however, till the disbandment of the force in 1842.

His broad range of intelligence, clear and impartial judgment, and intimate acquaintance with our municipal and political inatitutions, les. his services being sought for the discharge of public business by the people of his adopted township. Charlottenburg, whom he represented in the District and Counties Councils about fifteen years. When the Municipal Act came into force in 1850, by the terms of which Wardens were made elective, Dr. McIntyre was the first to be honoured by election to that dignified position for the three united counties.

The same year he was appointed to the Shrievalty of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry, the office having been rendered vacant by the promotion of his predecessor to the Wardenship of Kingaton Penitentiary. As Sheriff of these counties he has enjoyed a long incumbency, during which he has won the esteem of the people as much by the lenicucy with which he has tempered administrative justice, as by the general efficiency which has characterized his discharge of executive duty.

After his removal to Cornwall, the Sheriff acceded to the wishes of the people, as expressed repeatedly at the polls, and efficiated as Reeve of the town till a statute intervened to prevent Sheriffs holding cipal offices.

As a representative of official integrity, Sheriff McIntyre's reputa-tion is unexcelled by any; as a politician, he advocated Reform doc-trines until his acceptance of his present office removed him to the neutral zone of politics; as a municipal legislator, his worth is eluquently attested by the repeated expressions of confidence with which his constituents favoured him; while as a citizen, a gentleman, and a member of society, no man probably, within the circle in which he moves, stands higher in the rogard of his follows.

CHARLES E. HICKEY, BAA, M.D., of Morri-burg, is of U. E. Loyalist descent, being the fifth son of John Hickey, of Williamsburg, whose father drew as a Leyalist right the farm in the township named, on which the subject of our sketch was born, March 24th, 1840.

After spending his early years on his father's farm, he attended the Arts Department of Victoria College in Cobourg, from which institution he graduated with the Bachelor's degree in May, 1863, Choosing the medical profession, he attended McCill College, where his superior abilities attracted considerable attention, and he was made Valedictorian of his class, with which he graduated in May, 1866, carrying away the degree of Dector of Medicine.

Locating in West Winchester, Dundas County, he soon established a large and lucrative practice, which failing health compelled him to abandon in the spring of 1871. In October of the same year, however, he resumed the practice of his profession, but with Morrisburg as his location; and here and hereabouts his skill is substantially attested by the wide extent of the practice which has fallen to his care. While the Doctor's professional popularity has been extending to a greater width than that of any other man in the county probably, his advanced views of political economy, and general familiarity with the different phases of the political questions of the day, has brought him prominently forward as the "coming man" of the Conservative party of Dundas County. But his wide popularity as a local political representative present the intelligence and high respectability of his native county. The Doctor is a thorough Canadian in fact and in policy, holding the most liberal, practical, and progressive ideas, and considers that judicious political government is only r nore desirable talent of retaining and cementing a friendship once gained, the consequence being that he possesses a number of warm personal friends such as few men of his age acquire, and his intrinsic

gamen, the consequence being that he possesses in friends such as few men of his age acquire, and his intrinsic worth as a professional man, a citizen, and a gentleman, is unmistakably attested by this fact, which is apparent to all observers. Phillip Carman, J.P., of Iroquois, ex-Warden of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry, is a representative man of a family which during the present century has contributed more than a few of the local celebrities of Eastern Ontario, as well as some of much more extensive reputation. Mr. Carman is of U. E. Loyalist stock; his grandfather, Michael Carman, having borne arms in the British interest during the Revolution, and suifered the political extracts from his home and property which was meted out to all who remained firm in their allegiance to the British Crown after the establishment of American Independence. Coming to Canada in company with the other pioneers of this region, Mr. Carman located on Lot 25, front Concession of Matilda. With him came his son Michael, who became a popular and thritty farmer, living on the original homestead, where a family of several children were born to bless him, all of whom have since attained to positions of respect and prominence among their fellows.

Among the children mentioned was Philip, the subject of this sketch, who was born 7th February, 1806. After spending his boyhood days at home in the manner peculiar to the place and period, he learned the tanner and currier's trade in his native village, and subsequently carried on business for himself in that line, which proved quite successifi. After prosecuting this trade in Iroquois a few years, however, he removed to Belleville and engaged in mercantile pursuits; but not meeting with amarked success he returned to Iroquois, and reengaged in tanning, which trade he prosecuted with satisfactory profit till his ultimate retirement from active business averal years ance.

Mr. Carman was the first Municipal Clerk of Matilda, after the advent of the Municipal Act of 1850; was elected a member of the first Council of Iroquois after its incorporation in 1856; and in 1859 was elevated to the Reeveship of that corporation, which honour. In office he retained for eleven years. In 1864 he was elected Warden of the united counties, and was always considered one of the most able and sagacious men who ever sat in the Counties Council.

and sagacious men who ever sat in the Counties Council.

After his second location in Iroquois, Mr. Carman devoted'a large share of his energies to the education of his family rather than to the hoarding of wealth, their subsequent career and present social and professional status being a source of pride and pleasure to their friends, as well as an ample renumeration for their father's sacrifices in their behalf. Of his three sons, all are graduates of Albert College, Belleville. The eldest of these, Albert, has been for some years Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Ontario; the second son is practising law with success in Cornwall; and the youngest of the three, having graduated from the medical elepartment of Metill University, is engaged in the practice of his profession in Detroit, Minnesota.

BAIAH R. AULT, J.P., of Aultsville, Reeve of the township of Osnabruck, is one of six rons of Capt. Nicholas Ault, a son of the original settler of that name in this locality. This family has taken as prominent a part in the early, political, and military history of this rogion as any other who ever came to its shores. The history of their connection with local affairs dates from the original location of the U. E. Layalists. Capt. Nicholas Ault, father of I. R. Ault, took an active part in military operations during the Rebellion of 1837-8, and was present in charge of a company at the famous three days' battle of the Windmill, near Prescott. In private life he was enterprising and successful; and after reaching the age of 77, he departed this life at Aultsville in 1871.

Isaiah R. Ault is the second son of Capt. Nicholas Ault, and was born on the original homestoad , which still remains in possession of the family) in 1824. Here he spent the earlier years of his life, and at the age of 17 he entered the omploy of William Mattice, of Cornwall, as clerk in the extensive mercantile establishment conducted by that gentleman, where he soon rose in favour not only with his employers but with all his acquaintances.

Altering his intention, however, he located in Aultsville, where he assumed control of his father's general mercantile business. On the establishment of a post office in Aultsville 25 years since, Mr. Ault was appointed Postmaster, a position which he has ever since retained. He was also placed on the Commission of the Peace about the same time, and has been many years a Commissioner in Q.B. He was olected Deputy Reeve of Osnabruck in 1877, and re-elected theyear following; and in 1879 was elevated to the Reeveship of that township. Since his entry into the Counties Council, he has proved himself one of the most falented and useful members of that body. Politically Mr. Ault is a supporter of Conservative principles, though of decidedly independent sentiments, he having branched off from the old Reform party about the time of Confederation. He has become as popular with his new political friends as he was with those with whom he formerly worked and voted, but whose policy having ceased? commend itself to his judgment, was discarded for one which more closely coincided with his views. Since that time he has been offered a nomination by his party to contest the seat in the Commons for Stormont, but declined the same for private reasons; nevertheless, he has been very active in the political canvases of the county, and to his influence more than to that of any other man probably, the Conservative party owe their recent successes in this constituency.

As a citizen of his native village, he has been largely instrumental in its development, and in the advancement of all matters tending to in its development, and in the advancement of all matters tending to social, moral, educational, or religious reform. DONALD B. Maclessna, Q.C., of Cornwall, is a native of Glengarry County, where he was born October 17th, 1836. After a preliminary education at Williamstown, Grammar School, he entered the Arts education at Williamstown Grammar School, he entered the Arts Department of Queen's University at Kingston, from which institution he graduated with the degree of B.A. in 1857, and as Master of Arts in 1861. During the interval between those dates he taught successively the Grammar Schools of Waterdown and Port Dover, Ont. In May, 1861, he began the study of law as an articled clerk in the office of the late Hon. John Sandfield Macdonald, at Cornwall; was admitted to the Bar in 1865, and received the appointment of Ouen's Course in 1876.

Macleman & Maclonald, which is conceded to be the best and most successful legal firm in the county.

Aside from his professional duties, Mr. Macleman has indulged to some extent in politics, in which respect he is no partisan, but before endorsing the act of any political party, he weighs its probable influence upon the welfare of the country with that secund and impartial judgment for which he is noted in legal affairs. At the general election to the Commons in 1878, he came forward in the contest for the Cornwall seat as the opponent of Dr. Bergin, one of the most popular men in the counties, but was the candidate of no particular party, this being in accordance with a rule well established in Cornwall politics, more fully explained in our Political History. Although Mr. Macleman failed to secure the seat on that occasion, yet the run he made would have done credit to an older politician than he, and, taken as an estimate of his popularity among the people, it should be very satisfactory. It is no flattery to say that his superior intelligence, commanding presence, and fine oratorical talents, eminently it him for as high a place in the political world as the cavitable position which he at present occupies in social and professional circles.

CAPT. ALEXANDER FARLINGER, of Morrisburg, is the son of James Farlinger, of U. E. Loyalist parentage, whose father served in the British ar-ny during the Revolution, and subsequently settled at Dundee, Quebec, where the subject of this sketch was born, June 1st, 1824. At the age of 22 years he was placed in command of one of the Royal Mail ateamers then plying between Montreal and Kingston, and by his affability and courtesy added very materially to the popularity of that line. After a successful and profitable incumbency of seven years, the Captain sold out his interest in the line, and ombarked in years, the Captain sold out his interest in the line, and embarked in the mercantile, forwarding, and wharingor business in Present. In 1854 he married the daughter of the late Capt. Wm. Kyle, of Morris-burg, whereupon he settled permanently in that village. The successful business operations of Capt. Farlinger recommended The successful business operations of Capt. Farlinger recommended him as a person eminently qualified for the control of public business, and he was accordingly placed in the Reove's chair for Williamsburg Township before the incorporation of Morrisburg as a village; but his actionistic private business precluded him from betavoing much attention on public affairs since that time. He has nevertheless kept in the front rank of local politicians, being what he himself describes as a "thick and thin supporter of Sir John Macdonald." His patriotism was amply proven at the time of the "Trent affair," when he was commissioned by the Government to raise a company of Rifles for service, and in three days from the receipt of his commission he had currolled a full complement of men. enrolled a full complement of men.

At the Dominion Fair of 1879, he received the highest premium for a pair of crossmatched rosatsers, the prise in this case being a Dominion gold metal, which the Captain holds in especial regard by reason of its having been presented by the Princess Louise.

As a member of society the Captain eclipses the reputation, which he bears in any other respect, and is justly considered one of the most devoted of friends and prepossessing, courteous gentlemen on the St. Lawrence frontier.

NERGY HORSE, deceased, late of Cornwall, fairly represented that large and influential class of Canadian citizens popularly known as self-made men. Although of Scottish parentage, he was of Canadian birth, claiming Chatham, Argenteuil County, Quebeo, as the place

Michigan, where he was rewarded with ample success; and returning to Carnwall at the end of that period, his permanent residence in that town may be dated from that time.

About six years since Mr. Hodge assumed the ownership of the Elliott flouring mills in Cornwall, to which he added a woollen mill of considerable proportions, and in the management of these two institutions his time and energies were employed until his untimely death. He was possessed of talents and executive abilities which elevated him above the common herd of men—facts which his friends were not slow to discover and appreciate, for they elected him on several occasions to the Council Board of the town, and during the two years of 1s75 and 1s75 he filled the civic chair of Cornwall. In all capacities in which Mr. Hodge served the people, he fullidled his trust in a manner that won the praise and admiration of the public.

Mr. Hodge closed his career of usefulness, April 27th, 1879, and in him was lost a citizen, friend, and gentleman, whose vacant chair in society will not soon be tilled by one who can hope to hold so high a place in the affections of his fellows.

LIET.-COL. ALEXANDER G. MACDONELL, of Morrisburg, is a descendant of the fanous "Greenfield" family of Macdonells, of Giengarry County, who are referred to at some length in our Political and Military Historics elsewhere in this work. Mr. Macdonell was born at St. Paphael's, Glengarry, in 1818, received his education at the Cornwall Grange Jarvis, who was then a practising attorney in that town. While yet in his "teens," Mr. Macdonell displayed the martial spirit for which his family are famous, by taking command of a Company of Glengarry Light Infantry during the rebellion of 1837, and retaining that commission till the disbandment of the forces in 1842; and while serving in that capacity, he was instrumental in the recapture of Beautharnois from the rebels in 1838.

Restuning the study of law, he was admitted to practise in 1844.

Resuming the study of law, he was admitted to practise in 1844 Resuming the study of law, he was admitted to practise in 1844, when he established himself in Morrisburg, then just assuming the aspect of a village, in which place he has continued to reside and practise his profession. Having become prominent and popular among the citizens, he was elected to the first Council of Morrisburg in 1861, and was by his fellow-councillors placed in the Recve's chair. The same year he was elected to the Wardenship of the united counties, a compliment rarely bestowed upon a new member of such a body. That his municipal record was satisfactory to his constituents is eloquently attested by his re-election to the Recveship of his adopted village for fifteen consecutive years at the cod of which period, in 1855 eloquently attested by his re-election to the Reeveship of his adopted village for fifteen consecutive years, at the end of which period—in 1875—he voluntarily withdrew from public affairs, and accepted the super-intendency of the Williamsburg group of St. Lawrence canals, consisting of the Gallops, or Point Iroquois; the Rapid du Plat, or Morrisburg; and The Farran's Point Ganals. In this expacity, as in all others, Mr. Macclonell is a pattern of efficiency and thoroughness, discharging the duties of his office in a manner highly commendatory of his integrity and good judgment.

His title of Lieut. Colonel is conferred by a commission of that rank in the Reserve Militia of Dundas County, which he has held for many years, but happily has never, since its receipt, had occasion to prove the valour of himself and his command.

M. F. Beach, of West Winchester, ex-Warden of Stormont, Dundas M. F. BEATH, of West Winchester, ex-Warden of Stormont, Dunday, and Glengarry, is a gentleman whose name is well worthy of mention among the popular representative men of Dundas County. The record of the past twenty-four years of his life is so closely identical with that of the Township of Winchester, and especially of the Village of West Winchester, that in the history of the one we must perforce have much of the other's history.

Mr. Beach settled in his adopted village in 1856, when the houses which conditioned in meaning anopen value in 1850, when the houses which conditioned the place" could be counted on the fingers of one hand; and having been both figuratively and literally one of those most chiefly instrumental in building up the town, he has had the pleasure of watching it grow to greater maturity and commercial importance than any other unincorporated village in the counties.

In 1857 he started the pioneer saw-mill of the locality, to which we been added other branches of trade, referred to in our sketch of have been added other branches of trade, referred to in our sketch of the village. By the practice of those admirable traits of character for which he has become proverbial—industry, energy, enterprise, and strict integrity—he has attracted a most extensive and probtable volume of business; the prudent economy which has formed another feature of his business career enabled him to accumulate a valuable property, from the control of which the community reaps a benefit second only to his own.

The high intelligence, good judgment, and private success of Mr. Beach led to his selection by the people to serve them in a representative capacity, he having been elected to the Deputy-Reeveship of Winchester during thirteen consecutive years, a fact by which his popularity is amply attested, and his ability unmistakably asserted. In 1873 Mr. Boach was elected to the highest office in the gift of the Counties' Council—the Wardenskip—in token of his long and valuable services at the Board, among whose members no other enjoyed a better reputation for devotion to business or intellectual attainments.

Of firm resolution, broad and advanced ideas, a genial manner, and high social qualities, Mr. Beach possesses a degree of personal popularity in which any man may take a just prite; and though he has never come prominently forward in political affairs, he has the undoubted qualities essential in a legislator, and few men move in political circles in support of whom opposing political elements could more resulty units. more readily unite.

Isaac N. Ross, J.P., deceased, late of the Village of Morrisburg, was the son of Alex. Rose, J.P., and was born on the family homestead, on which a portion of the village now stands, July 14th, 1811.

Learning the tamor's trade in his youth, he carried on that business in his native locality a number of years, but subsequently abandoned that calling and embarked in the mercantile trade among the very first in Morrisburg. By prudence and industry, coupled with the most sterling integrity, he achieved envisible success in business, a portion of which was the management of the extensive farm which had been his father's.

Mr. Rose early displayed those traits of character which invariably mark their possessor as a leader among men, and bringing to the support of those attributes a mind capable of grasping any network of details, and a high sense of justice that knew no favour, it was equally fitting and true that he became a monitor among his fellows. Having been placed on the Commission of the Peace at an early age, his office entailed upon him the decision of countless cases of difference, and in this, as in all capacities in which he acted, his record was above

He sacrificed private to public interests in many cases, and when the local weal demanded his services in any capacity, he was always found ready to respond. He was several years Reeve of Williamsburg, and in all matters of local concorh his means and influence contributed liberally to their advancement. During the latter twenty years of his life, Mr. Rose discharged the duties of Superintendent of the Williamsburg Canals, bringing to his aid in that office the same ability and thoroughness by which he was characterized in other respects.

Mr. Rose was a great personal friend of Hon. J. Sandfield Macdonald. He was kind, generous, and charitable. A fast friend and a fair opponent, he won and retained the respect of all; and in his death, which occurred Sopt. 12th, 1874, each felt it as a personal affliction, and mourned the loss of the truly estimable gentleman whose nequaintance had been one record of pleasant remembrances.

The father of Mr. John R. Roger Wood, in company with several other Loyalists, formed the first settlement in the vicinity of Lunenburg, where his son John R. was born, May 8th, 1808, on Lot 8, Concossion 3, and here he has ever since resided. Van Kaughnet, and here he and his command took an active part in the battle of the Windmill.

Mr. iooth has ever been considered one of the most useful and reliable citizens of his township. He has held aloof from active participation in public affairs, but his superior intellectual abilities and proverbial uprightness of character rendered his advice on matters of public interest very valuable, and he has always been willing to direct the course of the numerical carf while others held the helm. As a farmer he has been industriors and successful, as a citizen public-spirited and esteemed, as a man generous, intelligent, and upright, in whom the elements of genuine popularity are judiciously combined.

After leaving the Public School, he was educated in the Grammar Schools at Vankleek Hill and L'Orignal, and the Normal School at Toronto, From which institution he received a first class (grade A) certificate. Turning his attention to teaching, he controlled some rural schools for a period, after which he officiated as Principal of the Seaforth and Cornwall High Schools successively.

Taking up the study of medicine, he attended and graduated from the Medical Department of Mctill University in 1807, since which time he has been in active practice, and in connection with his pro-fession has been made a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons for Ontario, and Associate Coroner for the Counties of Stor-mont, Dundas, and Glengarry.

His connection with educational affairs has been continued by his appointment to the Inspectorship of the Glengarry Schools in 1871, which position he has ever since filled, with the exception of a short intervening incumbency by Mr. Ross. He is also a member of the Beard of Examiners for the united counties.

Mr. Tyrrell's ability and integrity soon attracted to his office a practice such as few men of his age are favoured with, and the unusual success attending him was and is but a just reward for the untiring energy which characterises his professional life.

Like most gentlemen who display poculiar business ability, Mr. Tyrrell has been called upon to assist in the control of public affairs, and responded by several years' service in the Village Council. He was also for a time connected with official life as Deputy Registrar of Dundas County, but he resigned that office on the passage of a statute prohibiting its incumbency by any legal practitioner or conveyance.

Devoting his energies to professional advancement, Mr. Tyrrell has necessarily held aloof from active participation in politics, but in all respects touching his social, professional, and intellectual standing, he is universally conceded a place in the front rank.

WILLIAM ELLIOTT, of Iroquois, ox-Warden of Storment, Dundas, and Glengarry, is of Scotlah nativity, having been born in Roxburgh, Scotland, in 1800. Emigrating to America at the age of 28, he remained in Lansingburg, N. Y., till 1832, when he removed to Armstown, C. E., where he purchased land, and sent to Scotland for his father and family, who arrived the following year, whereupon Mr. William Elliott returned to New York State.

Locating for the second time in Canada in 1840, he carried on the browing business in Moulinette about four years, meeting with good success. When the St. Lawrence canals were under construction, Mr. Elliott with his brother Andrew executed the contract for building three sections thereof, the bulk of their contract being the Point Iroquois Canal. This venture proved financially successful, and he tenhe bought the water privilege of the canal at Iroquois, where he canstructed grist and flouring mills.

In company with another gentleman, Mr. Elliott built upon contract the Grand Trunk Railway through the entire County of Dunda, After the completion of this contract, he devoted his time to the milling business in Iroquois, but in 1830 his mill was destroyed by fire, and although entirely uninsured, he rebuilt it the next year, whence he carried on business successfully until 1869, when he sold out, and retired to a well-carned repose.

Mr. Elliott, besides being one of those most instrumental in the building up of Iroquois, was also among the most active in controling its destinies during the first few years of its existence as a separate municipality. He was a member of the first Council elected for the village, and the following year, 1859, was elected its Reeve. Taking his soat in the Council, he was at one honoured by his elevation to the Warden's chair. In his dealings with his fellow-men Mr. Elliott has won a reputation for even-handed justice of which he may well feel proud. Added to this, and contributing in equal parts to the success which has crowned his efforts, were persevering industry and broad enterprise in a degree rarely exceeded by any; and these, combined with his advanced and popular sentiments, secured for him a place in the public favour, in which he has been fortified by his subsequent record and an extended acquaintance.

WILLIAM BINIONS, deceased, late of the Township of Matilds, was a gentleman who rose to the high social and financial position which he occupied solely by his own efforts, and may be justly classed as a self-made man. Born in the County Woxford, Ireland, in 1814, he lost his father while still very young, and as by the real estate laws of that country all the family property was inherited by his eldest brother, he found himself at the age of sixteen with meither property nor encouraging prospects. In this state of affairs, he emigrated alone to Canala, and during the three years following was employed in Lyman's drug store in Montreal. At the age of about twenty he removed to Matilda, where he married and engaged in farming on rented premises. By close application and unremuting industry he was enabled to save sufficient to buy a farm of his own, whereupon he purchased the one on which he died, fronting the River St. Lawrence, and to this he kept adding until he possessed a block of 400 acres in the most desirable part of the township.

The qualities which tended to Mr. Binions' success in private affairs were duly recognized by the electors of his adopted township, who placed him in a seat at the Council Board, where he served them many years in the different capacities of Councillor, Deputy Reeve, and Reeve. Hr was deeply interested in the excellence and advancement of agricultural science, and prompted by this interest, visited each Provincial Exhibition which has been held during the last twenty-five years. He was a magistrate of many years' standing, and in that capacity, as in all others, won the commendations of all who knew him.

Mr. Blinions closed a pure and useful life at his home, August 11th, 1873, leaving a spotless example of all the personal virtues which go to constitute the faithful friend, the devoted husband and father, the upright citizen, and thorough gentleman.

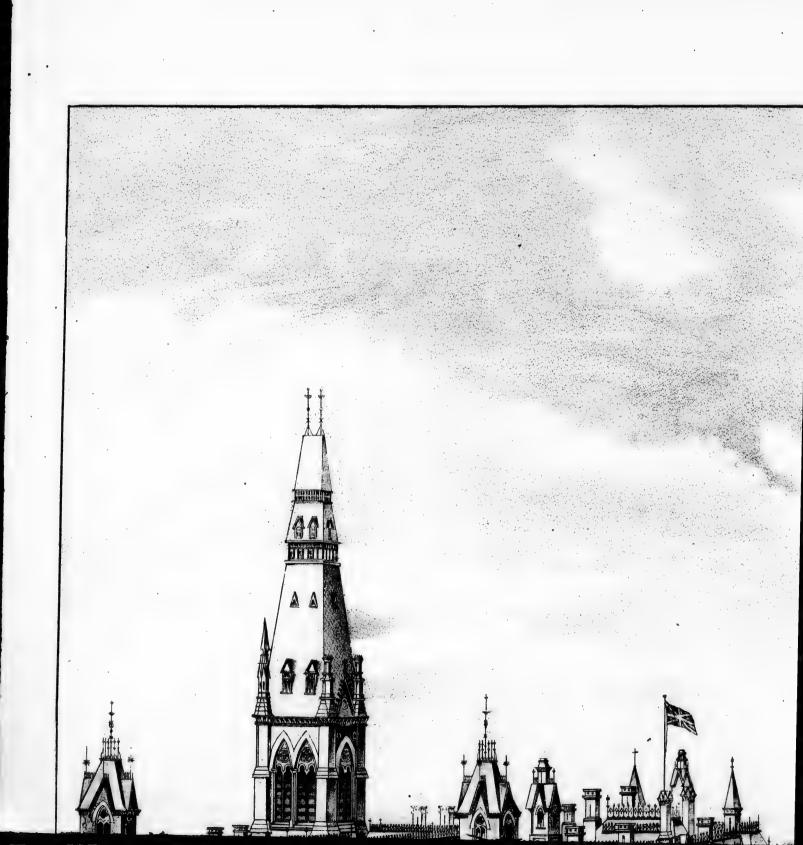

Joseph Hyndman, J.P., of the Township of Mountain, was born at Derry, Ireland, in 1808, and after having passed his majority emigrated with his wife to Canada, when the means of communication were so imperfect that more than a week was required in which to accomplish the journey from Montreal to his adopted home in Mountain. Settling on a bush farm, he at once commenced the conquest of the forest, his domicile during the first summer of his abode here consisting of a shanty, size 8x 10 feet, where his coat was made to do service as a door. After a hand-to-hand encounter with the trials and vicissitudes invariably incident to pioneer life in the woods, Mr. Hyndman emerged from the condition of poverty in which he came to Mountain into one of independent affluence, the attainment of which is due solely to his unremitting toil and prudent economy.

But his intellectual qualities were fully equal to his physical proportions, and as a directer of public affairs he soon became equally prominent and useful. He was many years member of the Municipal Council, occupying the Reeve's chair during three torms. His ability and influence were also recognized by the Government, who early placed him on the Commission of the Peace. In the history of Mountain, few men have been more closely or actively identified with its interests, and none have secured and retained a greater share of deserved popularity and esteem.
